Dear Mary,

I want to thank you personally for your recent check for Life Membership in Benton County Historical Society. This was very generous and we appreciate the support such gifts give to our history organization.

Virginia Taylor was excited to know about your membership since she has communicated with you before. We hope our efforts and records have been able to help you with some family history questions and the information you relay to us may be able to help others with their inquiries..

By now you should have received the annual newsletter and we hope you enjoy this little bit of news from Benton County. I noticed a change in your address - and have corrected it on the mailing list.

If you are ever in Fowler please be sure and stop by Ella's house. Thank you again, from all our BCHS members and friends.

Sincerely,

Thelma Glaspie

FOWLER — Velma Mae Cook Williams, 87, of 703 E. Fifth St., Fowler, died at 9:45 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 18, 1999, in St. Vincent Hospital in Indianapolis.

She was born on June 9, 1912, in Chicago, starting school in Worthington and then moving to Valparaiso. In 1930, she graduated from Valparaiso High School and attended Valparaiso University and Ball State College in Muncie. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Chicago.

Williams

She taught Latin and English in Morgan Township, Valparaiso and Hobart High School for a total of five years. On July 26, 1941, she married Edgar Pricer Williams in Valparaiso. He preceded her in death in 1971.

She moved to Fowler, teaching Latin and English in the Benton County Schools for 15 years.

She was a member of the Fowler United Methodist Church, Ladies Musicale, Woman's Club of Fowler, Big Ten Federated Club, Home Extension Chorus, Tippecanoe-Benton Retired Teachers Association, Tri Kappa Association, American Legion Auxiliary and Order of the Eastern Star, where she was a 50-year member.

Surviving are a son, Kirk Pricer Williams of Littleton, Colo.; and two daughters, Vinita Williams Swenty of Seoul, Korea, and Luida Williams of Indianapolis.

WILLIAMS, Velma M.
Visitation 4-8 p.m. Wednesday, Windler Funeral Home in Fowler. Service 11 a.m. Thursday at Fowler United Methodist Church, the Rev. Peggy Good officiating. Interment Fowler Cemetery. Surviving are a grandson and a great-grandson. Preceded in death by a brother. Memorials to the Heart Association and Diabetes Fund.

First School House in Fowler built in 1872--probably back part of building which seems to be older --this needs more research to determine ~~if~~ an addition was built and if it is really Fowler school.

Paper by Grace Cneal given at May 1921 graduation exercises for Fowler High School is printed in Benton Reviews for June 23 and 30 1921 Says first public school was a two story building with a hall upstairs amd two rooms downstairs built by George Nichols was surrounded by a five board fence not to keep children in but horses and cattle out.

Dear AgnesAnn,

Thank you for your lovely letter - if we continue you and I maybe able to end the Civil War!

All the confusion comes from someone very close to one or the other sides.

I am enclosing a copy of two letters I received from National - this letter answers your question.

I won't be in the parade this year - I'm a little "under the weather."

Yours

Maude

Tales, trails and footprints

A most intriguing opportunity was given me by Roseanna Williams, local business woman. She is the wife of John Williams, local photographer. Her maternal grandmother was Samantha Cora (Heaton) Smith who was born in 1865 and married Harry Hanson Smith September 17, 1905. He was born April 25, 1860, and died March 25, 1954. Samantha died in 1928 at Tulsa, Oklahoma.

When Samantha died, Roseanna fell heir to some old family keepsakes, among which were two ornate metal badges. I will write about one of them today and save the other for another time.

The most ornate one is made of bronze. It has a five-point star with a circle around the star. The circle is embossed with the words "Grand Army of the Republic." The outer edge is apparently olive leaves. This star is attached to a red and white ribbon. There is a small rectangular blue field which contains thirteen stars. A pin bar across the top of the ribbon allows it all to be attached to clothing and has the initials F.C.L.

Needless to say, this was enough to put me seeking a trail. A consultation with Mary Ruhl, reference librarian, resulted in a delightful learning experience for us both.

The Grand Army of the Republic (G.A.R.) was founded in April of 1866 at Springfield, Illinois. It was organized under the leadership of Dr. Benjamin F. Stephenson, a former Union Army surgeon. This organization was to become the largest organization of Union Veterans. Its purpose was to promote comradeship among veterans, to extend pension rights, to provide relief for war widows and orphans, and to maintain homes for old soldiers.

Records show that in 1868 the G.A.R. Commander-in-Chief was John A. Logan. He is better known for inaugurating the observance of Memorial Day in honor of all fallen soldiers.

In the presidential election of 1888, the G.A.R. undoubtedly helped defeat the re)election of Grover Cleveland. The members objected to this Democratic president because he had veteoed pension legislation.

By 1890, this staunchly Republican organization peaked at more than 400,000 members. In 1956, only 90 years after its beginning, this once-powerful group was dissolved.

I regret I have been unable to identify the meaning of F.C.L. on the bar. I will look for letters from readers to help with tis identification.

In comparison, the Southern organizations are still in

This is a very prestigious-looking medal. In the center of the star, there appear to be two soldiers shaking hands while another watches. Below the shaking hand kneels a woman and child.

existence. The Confederate States Veterans are now known as Sons of Confederate Veterans. The women's organization is known as United Daughters of the Confederacy. Both of these organizations are dedicated to patriotic endeavors, providing scholarships and other benevolent activities. They give financial aid to the daughters of Confederate Veterans who are still living. These women are referred to as Real Daughters because their fathers were Confederate soldiers.

Historical meeting

The Historical Society meets Thursday, March 8, at 7 p.m. in the Ardmore Public Library. The speaker will be Bill Cornish, who has automobile agencies in Ardmore and Healdton. He will speak on the evolution of the Ford car with emphasis on the Model T. A question-and-answer session will follow. "Y'all come!"

Dear Mrs. Ball:

I have received your note and the copy of LOG, Vol. 1, #1. Thank you for replying so promptly.

I am enclosing my check in the amount of $8.00 for Vol. 1, #2-#3-#4, for 1984 abd also enclosing the additional 2.00 for the #1 you have already sent.

I am enclosing a copy of the will of my ancestor, Charles Rose, who died in Monongalia County, W.VA., in 1816, for publication in LOG. Also, have sent a query and my ancestor chart.

Enjoyed the LOG you sent and have recently received my first issue for 1985. It is surely time that someone got busy with a West Virginia quarterly and I congratulate you for the good beginning. I do hope it, as it grows, will have statewide coverage for all counties.

Sincerely,

Mary

OBITUARY

Rev. E. C. Bullick was born in Shannon county, Mo., 75 years ago the 23rd of this month (Oct.), 1922. Fifty-five years ago, he and Sister Bullick were married. Thirty-four years ago he was converted and baptized into the fellowship of the Amita Baptist church in Missouri. The Lord called him to preach the bospel and he was ordained to the gospel ministry in the Boyd's schoolhouse, in Missouri, thirty years ago. He was pastor of a number of country churhes for a number of years. The Lord graciously blessed his ministry and many souls were won to Christ and united with the churches.

His health failed him and with his family moved from te old home place in Missouri to Bartlesville, 11 years ago. Nine years ago he moved to Dewey. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge in Missouri and also of the Rebekah lodge.

He was a member of the A. F. & A. M. lodge at Summerville, Mo.

He was a veteran of the Civil War on the side to preserve the Union.

He was a member of the Baptist church. He will be missed from our gatherings. He leaves a wife, four sons, one daughter, and a sister and a host of friends to mourn his departure. 27 [illegible]

Treasured Seasons

For everything there is an appointed season.
And a time for everything
under heaven.
A time for sharing.
a time for caring.
A time for loving.
a time for giving.
A time for remembering.
a time for parting.
You have made everything
beautiful in its time
For everything You do
remains forever.

Obituaries

Mabel Metzinger

Mrs. Mabel Inez Metzinger, wife of Raymond Henry Metzinger of Drumright, died February 19. The funeral Mass was held at St. Mary's Church with the Rev. John Lundberg as celebrant. Commital rites were accorded Mrs. Metzinger on the family plot in Oak Hill Cemetery at Drumright, Oklahoma.

A native of Oklahoma, Mrs. Metzinger was born in Bartlesville on May 6, 1908, the daughter of Orrin Ometa Mitchem and Ella Adeline (Hendricks) Mitchem, who came to Bartlesville, Indian Territory, prior to statehood.

On May 25, 1927, she was married to Raymond Henry Metzinger in Iola, Kansas. They made their home in Seminole, where Metzinger was employed by Sinclair Oil and Gas Company. They moved to Drumright in 1932 and he continued his employment with Sinclair until his retirement in 1964.

Mr. and Mrs. Metzinger celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1977 and were honored to have their orginal wedding attendants, Mary Isabel Metzinger of St. Joseph, Missouri and John Reinhard Metzinger of Coffeyville, Kansas attend the large dinner and reception.

Mrs. Metzinger was a member of St. Mary's Altar Society and was actively interested in family history, being a descendant of Charles Rose, a Revolutionary War Patriot from New Jersey andVirginia.

She was preceded in death by one daughter, Nancy Anne Phillips, her parents and brothers and sisters-Myrtle Alice Grove, Grace Irene Mitchem, Beulah Digney, Howard Hendricks Mitchem (the first Bartlesville boy killed in World War I,) Thomas Orrin Mitchem and Wilbur W. Mitchem.

She is survived by her husband of the home, her sister Mrs. Ruth Ella Johnston of Temple, Texas, three daughters, Mrs. Richard (Mary) Nunneley, Bartlesville, Mrs. Kenneth (Helen) Frazier, Drumright and Mrs. Larrie (Eva) Slusser, Lafayette, Louisana, 12 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Pall bearers were Mike Schrick, Joe Salem, Bill Kelley, Fred Joseph, L.B. Armstrong and Earl Bach.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank Dr. Gonzaga and staff, Father John Lundberg, Roxie Harrington, St Mary's Altar Society, Marie Cooper, and all of the many friends for flowers, cards, food and thoughtfulness during the illness of our wife and mother, Mabel Metzinger.

Moen handled the case in the Sept. 14 accident.

Police reports showed that Pinson was driving a car that struck Isaac Franklin, 51, and his son, Henry B. Franklin, 20, both of the 1200 block of South Victory.

Her car was northbound in the 22000 block of Interstate 45 near Spring-Stuebner Road when she hit the two men, crossed the median and ran into a tree on the other side of the highway.

■ Man given life, fine

A jury sentenced a man to life in prison and fined him $10,000 Friday for shooting another man to death in a park during the Fourth of July weekend.

Richard Monsevias, 22, of the 12500 block of LaRochelle, was convicted and sentenced by a jury in the court of state District Judge Sam Robertson for the July 6 murder of Anthony Eugene Coburn, 22, of the 14600 block of Longview.

Assistant District Attorney Nick Vincent said if Monsevias is paroled from prison on his life term, he would then be responsible for paying the court the $10,000 fine.

Vincent said Monsevias was arguing with Coburn's younger brother at Greenwood Park in the North Shore area around 1 a.m. when Coburn broke up the fight.

Testimony from witnesses showed Monsevias left, only to return later and fire a gun five times at the two brothers. One shot to Coburn's stomach killed him.

The brother was shot four times and survived wounds to his chest and arms, Vincent said.

Monsevias testified he was at home at the time of the killing. But two witnesses from the park identified him as the killer, and the license plate from the car driven by the killer was traced to Monsevias, Vincent said.

■ Trial in 3rd day

There was more detailed testimony from policemen Friday in the third day of the murder trial of Kathleen Sandiford, charged with killing her heart surgeon husband with a .357-caliber Magnum pistol in their River Oaks home.

Assistant District Attorney Jesse Rodriguez is prosecuting the case with Mack Arnold. Homicide detective T.D. Murray continued with his testimony describing the scene for most of the morning.

Much of the time was taken by the intricate cross-examination by defense lawyers Marian Rosen and Carol Vance, a former Harris County district attorney.

In the afternoon, another officer took the stand to desribe how photographs were taken at the home in the 3400 block of Del Monte where Dr. Frank Sandiford, the state Monday.

■ Error voids charges

Theft, weapons and drug charges against a weekend supervisor for the city's solid waste department were dismissed Friday because of an error made in the paperwork that led to the arrest warrant.

Assistant District Attorney Doug Davis explained that he agreed with defense attorney Bill Burge that the charges should be dismissed because the statement of probable cause said a police officer observed the crime when that did not really happen.

He said the officer learned of the crime from someone else who had been trailing the suspect.

Clem Griffith, 41, had been charged with theft for allegedly charging the city for overtime when he was really going home or to beer joints. When he was arrested in October, police said he was carrying a weapon illegally and had a small amount of marijuana.

The misdemeanor charges were dismissed in the court of County Court at Law Judge Neil McKay.

Burge said Griffith has been reinstated in the job, which has an official classification of refuse truck driver. Davis said the charges probably will not be refiled.

■ Police threats claimed

Post Galveston Bureau

GALVESTON — Chester Lee Wicker, facing trial for capital murder, testified here Friday that Beaumont police beat him and threatened to castrate and kill him to force him to confess to the kidnap-murder of Lamar University student Suzanne Knuth.

Wicker, 32, who did not testify at a previous hearing in October regarding his purported confessions, testified in 56th District Court after visiting state District Judge Larry Gist of Beaumont reopened Wicker's suppression hearing.

Gist had previously ruled that two written confessions and one oral confession that Wicker made to investigators were admissible evidence.

Gist said he would rule on the new attempt to suppress Wicker's confessions next week after prosecutors have an opportunity to present witnesses.

Jury selection began Jan. 6 and is to continue Tuesday. Ten jurors have been selected so far.

Wicker is charged with kidnapping Knuth in Beaumont, strangling her and burying the body on Bolivar Peninsula April 4. Sand found in Wicker's lungs indicate the 23-year-old student was buried alive, police say.

MX missile motor tested successfully, firm reports

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Hercules Inc. officials have announced that the third-stage motor being developed for the new MX missile has been successfully test fired.

D.E. Thompson, Hercules Air force programs manager, said the test Thursday confirmed the overall structural integrity of the third-stage motor, and marked the first test of any of the three stages being developed for the new intercontinental ballistic missile.

The Eternal Goodness

I know not what the future hath
Of marvel or surprise;
Assured alone that life and death
His mercy underlies.

And if my heart and flesh are weak
To bear an untried pain,
The bruised reed He will not break,
But strengthen and sustain.

And so, beside the silent sea,
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.

I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care . . . .

Dear Mr. Hergotz:

Enclosed, papers concerning the estate of Irma Lane Atkinson, 600 South Pennsylvania, Drumright, Creek County, Oklahoma, received on 5 March 1983, by the family of Mabel Metzinger.

My mother, Mabel Metzinger, executrix for the estate of Irma Lane Atkinson, was deceased on 19 February 1983.

This estate was settled some years ago and Mrs. Metzinger was released of her duties as executrix by a court of Creek County, Oklahoma, date unknown to me.

Mrs. Metzinger, after her release as executrix, has continued to receive such enclosed correspondence from the Internal Revenue Service, which has been forwarded to the attorneys of Irma Lane Atkinson, Cubbage and Cubbage, Lawyers.

I, nor any member of my family, have any knowledge of the estate of Irma Lane Atkinson, since all papers concerning this estate were delivered to Cubbage and Cubbage, Lawyers at the time of settlement of the estate in the courts of Creek County, Oklahoma.

Any further correspondence concerning the estate of Irma Lane Atkinson should be directed to:

CHANUTE — When first-grader Misty Barney set free a balloon during the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout last week, the purpose was to encourage its finder to quit smoking.

The message, however, was lost on Sonny Metzinger of Fowler, Ind. Metzinger, a nonsmoker, found the balloon in a field in Fowler, 200 miles south of Chicago — about 500 miles from Chanute.

The balloon, one of about 400 released last Wednesday by students at Hutton Elementary School, carried a short message urging its finder to kick the habit. Metzinger, manager of the Free Grain Co., wrote to the school, saying he had found the balloon but did not smoke.

ROGER RAMBLINGS

By MARY DAVIS

Appearances are deceiving. From the tears and screams at Will Rogers one would have thought some tragedy had occurred, if he had failed to notice the radiant smiles.

Kaye Manning, Miss Will Rogers XXXI, and her royal court had just been announced. She will be crowned in a coronation assembly Thursday and again at half time when Rogers plays Central at Skelly Stadium Friday at 8 p.m.

"I was so surprised, shocked, and so happy," Kaye recalled. "I don't know how to express my feelings of gratitude and honor."

As head cheerleader, Kaye is serving her second year on the A-cheerleading squad after one year on the B-squad. She was also a class officer and queen attendant in her sophomore year.

In the all school elections attendants were also elected. They are Gale Williams and Cathy Hess, seniors; Marsha Becton and Sharon Davis, juniors; and Teresa Singer and Teresa Thurmond, sophomores.

In the tradition filled coronation assembly tomorrow, Kaye will be escorted by Jackson Todd and crowned by Bill Shilling. Dale London will make the football toss to the new queen.

Providing a vivid contrast to the Football Queen's gold satin gown will be the attendants carrying yellow mums against their blue gowns. Football players Allen Mullinax, Tom Allsup, David Foreman, David McWilliams, Randy Meador, and Richard Kley will escort them.

After Friday's Homecoming game with Central, Ropers are invited to a Victory Dance in Kaye's honor in the boys' gym with the "Third Street Experience" playing.

Juniors elected Dick Nunneley, president, and David Finch, vice-president, September 25. An entire slate of officers was elected last spring, but Mike Jarred, president, moved to Indiana. Both David and Dick, who was vice-president, decided to run when the election to replace Mike was announced. Dick received a majority for the president and David took over as vice-president.

MABEL INEZ METZINGER

Mrs. Mabel Inez Metzinger, wife of Raymond Henry Metzinger of Drumright, died Feb. 19. Funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church with Rev. John Lundberg as celebrant. Committal rites were accorded Mrs. Metzinger on the family plot in Oak Hill Cemetery at Drumright, Okla.

A native of Oklahoma, Mrs. Metzinger was born in Bartlesville on May 6, 1908, the daughter of Orrin Ometa Mitchem and Ella Adeline (Hendricks) Mitchem, who came to Bartlesville, I.T., prior to statehood.

On May 25, 1927, she was married to Raymond Henry Metzinger in Iola, Kan. They made their home in Seminole, where Mr. Metzinger was employed by Sinclair Oil and Gas Company. They moved to Drumright, in 1932 and he continued his employment with Sinclair until his retirement in 1964. Mr. and Mrs. Metzinger celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary in 1977.

Mrs. Metzinger was a member of the St. Mary's Altar Society and was actively interested in family history, being a descendant of Charles Rose, a Revolutionary War Patriot from New Jersey and Virginia.

She is survived by her husband of the home; her sister, Mrs. Ruth Ella Johnston of Temple, Texas; three daughters, Mrs. Richard (Mary) Nunneley, Bartlesville; Mrs. Kenneth (Helen) Frazier, Drumright; Mrs. Larrie (Eva) Slusser, Lafayette, La., 12 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Ruth W. Bedford

Mrs. Ruth W. Bedford, age 90, widow of the late Rufus S. Bedford, and a longtime resident of Bartlesville, died at 3:40 p.m. Thursday in the Geriatrics Section of the local medical complex, following an extended illness.

Funeral services for Mrs. Bedford will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Monday in the St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Father Brian Packer, rector of the church, will serve as the officiant, and final committal rites will be accorded her in the Memorial Park Cemetery, under the direction of the Neekamp Funeral Home.

A native of Kansas, Mrs. Bedford was born in Weir, Kan., Jan. 22, 1894. She was reared and educated in the Weir, Kan., area and later attended business college. She was united in marriage to Mr. Rufus S. Bedford in June of 1928 and they made their residence in Bartlesville where Mr. Bedford served as executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce for many years. After Mr. Bedford's retirement, he preceded her in death in 1979, and she has made her home here since that time. Mrs. Bedford, at one time, was actively engaged in insurance agency offices for many years. She has been in failing health for the past six years, and was a member of the St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Rose Jernigan of Oklahoma City; four grandchildren, seven great grandchildren and a niece.

Postpone Mitchem Hearing

The preliminary hearing of a shooting with intent to kill charge against Roxie Mitchem has been postponed until next week on motion of the county attorney. She is in the county jail on failure to make a $2,000 bond. She is charged with firing a revolver at Joe Harris and two girl companions.

In a statement to the county attorney Friday morning, the girl said she has known Harris a year, but refuses to tell of any of her associations with him. She declined to answer a number of questions and said that she was merely shooting to stop the car and not to hit the driver. Her parents live here, she said.

The Rogers Symphony Orchestra will present its spring concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Roper auditorium. Precision, talent and hard work have gone into this concert.

IN HIS FIRST PUBLIC APpearance since a heart attack last October, Carl Barnett will direct the 80-piece group in everything from contemporary composition to a noble song from "Gone With the Wind," "Tara's Theme."

"It's sad to graduate, but I'm glad my senior year is ending with the greatest concert we've ever done," commented three-year orchestra veteran and first chair violist, Marcia Hicks.

"Variety is the mark of excellence," one famous writer said, and the Ropers have followed that advice. Barnett directs the musicians in "Jubilant Overture," by Pulitzer Prize winner, John LaMontaine.

THE FIRST HALF FEAtures "Cello Concerto No. 1," played by soloist Allyn McNicol. She is a member of the Tulsa Philharmonic Orchestra.

Senior Sue Hodge, a versatile soprano, will appear for the second time with the orchestra singing "Habanera," from the opera, "Carmen."

A famous Russian composition "Festival Overture," will close the program.

The Roper concert, last of the season, includes several popular numbers, but with variations.

Politics was the order recently of the Will Rogers student body, as Student Council and class officers were elected.

Student Council topped the races, since it is the representative body of the school. In an uncontested race, Gary Bryant was the choice for student council president.

GARY

Rex Anderson was named vice president against four other canidency. Both the presidency and vice presidency were held in all-school elections.

At a special meeting of Student Council representatives, Rhonda Holdridge received the office of secretary, while the new parliamentarian is Jerry Been. Phoebe Monger was elected chaplain, Jackson Todd, treasurer.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS for the class of '70 were also elected. Taking the reins is Tommy Barham. Gary Dickinson will serve as vice president. Barbara Dailey is treasurer, Pat Howerton, Student Council representative, Becky Brainard, secretary, Beverly Millard, social chairman.

In class of '71, Mike Jared took the presidency. Vice president will be Dick Nunley, Pam Worthington, secretary, Joanna Gray, treasurer, Diana Zongker, Student Council representative and Kathy Bailey, social chairman.

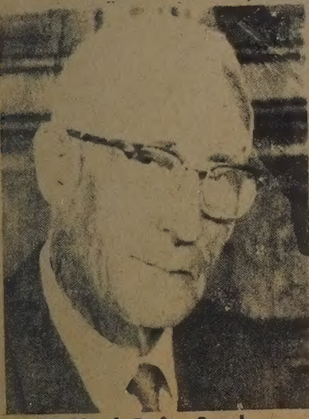
Rufus Bedford, 82, dies here Friday



Bedford, Rufus Stephen

Rufus S. Bedford, 82, longtime resident of Bartlesville and retired Executive Secretary of the Bartlesville Chamber of Commerce, died Friday in the Heritage Manor Convalescent Home where he had made his residence since April of this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedford have been prominent in the social and civic groups of this city for the past quarter century. Bedford, son of the late William Rufus and Juliet McBride Bedford, was born July 30, 1897 at St. Joseph, Mo., where he was reared and educated. During World War I, Bedford served as a Seaman Second Class in the U.S. Navy. Following his military service he was married to Ruth Wells, June 5, 1928. He served on the vestry of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, and was a lifetime honorary member of the Bluestem Cattlemen's Association, and served for many years on the Monsieur Moore Quarter Horse Commission.

Survivors include his wife; one daughter, Mrs. J.E. (Rose Marie) Jernigan of Oklahoma City; one sister, Ethel Mooney of St. Joseph, Mo; four grandchildren; four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the sanctuary of the St. Lukes Episcopal Church with Father Brian Packer, pastor of St, Luke's, officiating. Burial will be on the family plot in Memorial Park Cemetery under the direction of the Neekamp Funeral Home. Friends who wish may pay their respects in the stateroom of the Neekamp Funeral Home prior to the hour of the funeral service.

SWEETHEART IS NOT TRUE, SHE SHOOTS AT HIM

Miss Roxie Mitchem Fires Into His Speeding Automobile

WAS WITH OTHER GIRL

Panic Among Downtown Christmas Shoppers on Wednesday Afternoon; Young Woman is in Jail

Christmas shoopers on Johnstone avenue near Third street Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock observed a young woman walking rapidly down the avenue, her arms folded.

Those who noticed particularly her determined tread, turned and watched her. She turned into the middle of the street as she neared Third street, and as a Ford coupe whirled into view, she drew from her bosom a 32 calibre pistol, and pointed it at the moving car.

Bang! Bang! two shots rang out in rapid succession.

The scores of people on the side walks were thrown into a panic, and hurriedly moved away, many of them entering stores.

The Ford coupe—driven by Joe Harris a mechanic with two girl companions in the seat with him—slowed down, and the young woman with gun in hand approached.

Harris alighted, and walked straight toward the girl.

"What are you putting on?" he asked.

The young woman—Miss Roxie Mitchem—a waitress in a local cafe never made any audible reply.

But just as Harris alighted from the automobile, she was heard to mummur:

"I told him I would kill him if I ever caught him in company with another girl."

H. L. Shomette, and J. J. Speak, Associated Press operators, were standing within a few feet of where Miss Mitchem shot into the speeding car. They approached the car as it stopped.

E. C. Carman , proprietor of a local shoe store, noticed the young woman's rapid step as she passed him just a moment before the shooting. She was looking directly ahead, and apparently paying no heed to anybody on the sidewalk.

One of the bullets struck the radiator of the coupe, the other lodged in the rear. Neither of the three occupants of the car were hit.

Police Summoned

A hurried call was sent to the police station, and two policemen responded, and quickly placed the young woman under arrest.

She walked to the station with the officers, but refused to give up her gun, carrying it in her hand all the way to the station.

Harris and the young woman have been sweethearts for a year or more, and she owned a part interest in the Ford coupe, it was stated. She objected to Harris keeping company with other young women, and when he started carrying other girls riding in the automobile she decided on a little persuasion, so officers declared, after their investigation.

Face Intent Charge.

Miss Mitchem was turned over to county authorities by the police, and she was lodged in the county jail. A charge of shooting with intent to kill was lodged against her, but Harris refused to sign the complaint.

She will be given a hearing before Lee Woodruff, justice of the peace, this morning.

Miss Mitchem was as cool and collected throughout the affair as if she had been passing a bowl of soup over the counter to a diner in the restaurant where she worked, those who witnessed the near tragedy, declared.

NANNY —

Unlike most letters, here's one that is short, sweet, and to-the-point:

1. I miss you a whole lot.

2. I think of you and pray with you every day.

3. I wish I were there with you right now.

4. Without getting into an argument like you and Mother over who loved who first or who loves who most, let me put it this way:
   You may have loved me first (rank has its privileges!) but I was the first to call you "Nanny"
   (Now try and top that one!)

5. I love you more than you'll ever know and more than I could ever tell you.

Dickie

P.S. I trust that you will continue to keep my Grandaddy in line, as it is very embarrassing for me to get reports up here about his gallivanting around town! (HA-HA)

Love you
RD.

Borden introduces hi-calcium milk in Bartlesville

Borden has announced that its Dairy Division is introducing in Bartlesville calcium-fortified milk to combat the lack of sufficient calcium in the American diet.

The new products, called Hi-Calcium Milk and Hi-Calcium Lowfat Milk will be available soon in Bartlesville stores.

"Studies show that American adults consume about half as much calcium as the U. S. recommended dietary allowance (U.S. RDA)," said Oklahoma nutrition consultant Becky McCully. "These new milks provide 100 percent of the body's daily need for calcium in a single serving that tastes great and has the same calories as other milk, so we think people will drink it to get the calcium that they need."

Specifically, the U.S. RDA of calcium for adults of 1,000 milligrams is provided by one 8-ounce serving of Borden Hi-Calcium Milk or one 12-ounce serving of its Hi-Calcium Lowfat Milk. More daily calcium is needed for teenagers, pregnant women and women who have undergone menopause.

Borden is the first dairy to introduce a milk cntaining the U. S. RDA of calcium in one serving. The product has been in development for more than a year and a patent is pending on the manufacturing process.

McCully added that milk, in contrast to many calcium supplements, contains vitamin D, lactose (a carbohydrate) and casein (a protein) that aid the body in absorbing calcium.

Many people don't realize that bone is living tissue that constantly is being lost and replaced," she said. "If your body doesn't get enough calcium, it steals it from your bones. That could possibly spell disaster when you pass middle age."

The Osteoporosis Problem

According to the National Institute of Arthritis, Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases, osteoporosis ("porous bones") afflicts at last 15 million Americans, and commonly results in broken wrists and hips and dowager's hump (hump back) from crushed vertebrae. The Mayo Clinic reports that osteoporosis causes 150,000 hip fractures each year, and that about 12 percent of the people that suffer those fractures die from complicating factors.

"Americans have just recently begun to understand the epidemic proportions of this disease," McCully said. "It diminishes the quality of life for millions of elderly Americans, and the irony is that it can be prevented. But the prevention should begin while you're young. And sufficient calcium intake can help arrest osteoporosis in those that already suffer from it.'

She added that insufficient calcium intake can stop complete bone growth in children and teens and can prevent bones from reaching their peak density in adults in their 20s and 30s.

Osteoporosis cannot be detected by X-rays until as much as 40 percent of bone density has been lost, a point at which fractures are likely. Osteoporosis also cannot be cured. But doctors report that osteoporosis can be stopped by sufficient calcium intake and exercise throughout life, and by avoiding excess alcohol and nicotine (smoking), which reduce the body's ability to retain calcium.

"People are doing all they can to protect their health into old age, and diet and exercise are the overwhelming factors," said McCully. "Borden Hi-Calcium milks make a significant contribution to the supply of health-enriching products."

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Anthony

Couple wed 50 years

The children of Ray and Helen Anthony are hosting an open house to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their parents' wedding. The open house will be held at 1226 Macklyn Lane in Bartlesville, from 2-5 Sunday.

Summertime brings lazy days at the lake, cookouts and picnics. This season also brings an increased number of questions concerning food safety.

Keeping food safe from spoilage is easier said than done. Here are some common questions and helpful answers about food safety.

QUESTION: I know you're supposed to keep picnic foods on ice when you're on a summer outing, but it isn't easy. Halfway through the afternoon, my ice melts and I have a couple of deviled eggs and two pieces of chicken in a plastic bowl floating around in chilled water.

ANSWER: Since high temperatures for a sufficient time will defeat any cooling method, the best you can do is keep the food cold as long as possible. Pack cold foods directly from your refrigerator. Use a well-insulated cooler with plenty of ice or freeze-pack inserts and pack soft drinks in chilled aluminum cans. In other words, make sure everything is as cool as possible when you start out. When possible, set the cooler in the shade and keep the lid on.

Q: I've read so much about the dangers of mayonnaise in summer salads that I've almost quit making them. Is mayonnaise really a summertime food hazard?

A: Absolutely not. Mayonnaise is not a villain. While all mayonnaise-based salads should be kept on ice, commercial mayonnaise actually slows the growth of many food poisoning bacteria because of its lemon flavoring that acts as an acid. However, homemade mayonnaise with no lemon juice can be dangerous.

Q: The other day I saw a recipe for marinating pork ribs. Sounds good, but it calls for leaving the meat out in the sauce for eight hours. Is that wrong?

A: Yes, it is wrong. Most marinades contain acid, which slows bacteria growth, but eight hours is too long to leave meat out in the hot weather, even in the sauce. When a recipe calls for steeping meat and poultry over an hour, do it in the refrigerator where the cold temperatures will protect the food.

Q: We just got a new backyard grill, and my husband can't wait to try chicken on it. I'm a little leary because I've never cooked chicken outside. What do I need to know?

A: Chicken legs and parts are easy to cook on a grill because they cook fairly quickly without drying out, but whole or half chickens require a bit more finesse. When you have medium-hot coals, put the chicken — cut in half — rib-side down on foil over the grill. The bony rib-cage conducts heat to the met quickly. Turn halfway through cooking, putting the breast meat toward the coals. Make sure you cook the chicken thoroughly. When you prick the thigh meat with a fork, juices should run yellow, not pink.

Eager To Grow Extension Homemakers meet

Thirteen members of Eager To Grow Extension Homemakers and guest, Carol Wood of the extension office, enjoyed the hospitality of Marguerite Shoemaker and Doris Geiss May 8. Doris Geiss' devotion was based on Psalm 19:4, "Let the words of my mouth be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord." Members participated in the traditional flag salute and the collection of pennies and nickels and the secretary's minutes and treasurer's reports were accepted.

Roll call responses were on the various methods of using favorite fruits in meals, particularly "cool" fruits in the summer in salads and desserts. An informative lesson on using fruits in family meals was given by Pat Jordan and included information on "topography" for the identification of new-to-the-user fruits and suggestions for proper "picking."

Committee reports were given: Jessie Pope on fair entries; Virginia Anderson on health care benefits from AARP; how-to day at the mall from membership person, Doris Geiss and safety, Marguerite Shoemaker.

The president outlined work-meeting schedules: Knitting on Monday, May 12 at the home of Juanita Green; May 13, Rural Homemakers' Day at Coffeyville; May 21, 9:30 a.m. workshop at Green's Deer Creek 'estate' with salad luncheon; date in early June to be chosen for baking day for 4-H camp. Eager to Grow plans to begin a coin collection jar for county 4-H projects, chaired by Marguerite Shoemaker, with final approval from 4-H leaders and the extension office.

Lesson topics for 1987 should be turned in to Jessie Pope. Eager to Grow will also entertain ideas for one-day or ovenight trips for members. Nineteen members and guests had attended an interesting and informative tour of the research center and enjoyed lunch in their cafeteria recently. Carol Wood indicated there was a new deadline for information to be included in the newsletter and a new publication date. July 14-15 is the scheduled meeting of the State Extension Homemakers Council meeting; at this event, Jessie Pope of Eager To Grow will receive her 50 year membership award. The fair is Sept. 10-13 and Washington County now has 477 members in its circle.

Eager to Grow members voted to prepare a box of baby food products for the Salvation Army canned food drive scheduled for May 13 and also voted a donation to Women and Children in crises.

The June meeting will be at the Canterbury Square Club house with Lucille Hendrickson and Virginia Tindall as hostesses.

Harrimans to speak at local church

Evangelical Methodist Church will present "His Power for Paraquay" May 16-18. Rev. and Mrs. Harold Harriman will speak Friday night at 7 p.m., Saturday night at 6:30 p.m., Sunday morning worship at 10:45 a.m. and Sunday evening worship at 7 p.m.

The Harrimans have been missonaries in Bolivia and served as campus ministries representatives from 1984-1986. They now plan to go to Paraguay.

The music will be provided by Ashley and Beverly Alexander Friday night, Sunday morning and Sunday night. Children are welcome to come to the meetings.

Pilot Club of Dewey holds business meeting

The Pilot Club of Dewey held its regular business meeting May 6 at the Jane Phillips hospital. Following the executive board meeting. the business meeting was called to order by Helen Crow, president. Invocation was given by Frances Sass and pledge of allegiance by Ruth Roberts.

Minutes of the last business and program meetings were read by Barbara Herren, secretary. Lucille Steward gave the treasurer's report and Nettie Morgan read the Governor's Bulletin and reported on the correspondence.

Committee Chairmen gave their reports and Frances Sass reminded members to read their Communique to keep abreast with Pilot Information.

Members reviewed application for scholarships received from Dewey High School Senior girls, a recipient was chosen and will receive same at awards assembly May 13.

Applications were also received from LPN students at Tri-County Tech. A nursing scholarship will be granted one graduating student.

A report from the Fund Raising Chairmen Barbara Herren and Lucille Steward was made and members decided to hold the November Craft Show at the American Legion Building.

Frances Sass, chairman, read the committee's recommendations on revising the Standing Rules and By-Laws of the club. The recommendations were accepted.

An invitation was extended to the Pilot Club of Bartlesville and Green Country Pilot Club to attend installation May 20 at the Holiday Inn. Social hour is at 6:30 and dinner at 7:00.

Members who attended the District Convention in Muskogee reported on their activities.

Those wishing to attend the May 20 meeting should call reservations to Mary Corbett 333-2361 by Friday, May 16.

Summer eye problems

Lines appear easily around the eyes, because the skin there is thin and holds less water and oil than other skin. Without protection during the summer, eye-area skin can dry out and can start creasing from squinting. Before going out, always apply an eye cream containing sun-screen ingredients. Wear brimmed hats or visored eye shades to protect hair and entire face. Complete protection by wearing sunglasses with large lenses that are dark enough to filter out all glare.

Eager To Grow Extension Homemakers meet

Thirteen members of Eager To Grow Extension Homemakers and guest, Carol Wood of the extension office, enjoyed the hospitality of Marguerite Shoemaker and Doris Geiss May 8. Doris Geiss' devotion was based on Psalm 19:4, "Let the words of my mouth be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord." Members participated in the traditional flag salute and the collection of pennies and nickels and the secretary's minutes and treasurer's reports were accepted.

Roll call responses were on the various methods of using favorite fruits in meals, particularly "cool" fruits in the summer in salads and desserts. An informative lesson on using fruits in family meals was given by Pat Jordan and included information on "topography" for the identification of new-to-the-user fruits and suggestions for proper "picking."

Committee reports were given: Jessie Pope on fair entries; Virginia Anderson on health care benefits from AARP; how-to day at the mall from membership person, Doris Geiss and safety, Marguerite Shoemaker.

The president outlined work-meeting schedules: Knitting on Monday, May 12 at the home of Juanita Green; May 13, Rural Homemakers' Day at Coffeyville; May 21, 9:30 a.m. workshop at Green's Deer Creek 'estate' with salad luncheon; date in early June to be chosen for baking day for 4-H camp. Eager to Grow plans to begin a coin collection jar for county 4-H projects, chaired by Marguerite Shoemaker, with final approval from 4-H leaders and the extension office.

Lesson topics for 1987 should be turned in to Jessie Pope. Eager to Grow will also entertain ideas for one-day or ovenight trips for members. Nineteen members and guests had attended an interesting and informative tour of the research center and enjoyed lunch in their cafeteria recently. Carol Wood indicated there was a new deadline for information to be included in the newsletter and a new publication date. July 14-15 is the scheduled meeting of the State Extension Homemakers Council meeting; at this event, Jessie Pope of Eager To Grow will receive her 50 year membership award. The fair is Sept. 10-13 and Washington County now has 477 members in its circle.

Eager to Grow members voted to prepare a box of baby food products for the Salvation Army canned food drive scheduled for May 13 and also voted a donation to Women and Children in crises.

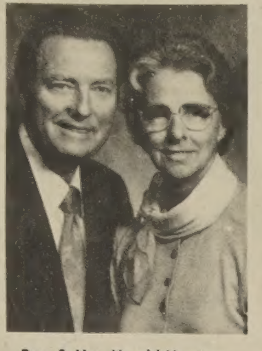
The June meeting will be at the Canterbury Square Club house with Lucille Hendrickson and Virginia Tindall as hostesses.

Harrimans to speak at local church

Evangelical Methodist Church will present "His Power for Paraquay" May 16-18. Rev. and Mrs. Harold Harriman will speak Friday night at 7 p.m., Saturday night at 6:30 p.m., Sunday morning worship at 10:45 a.m. and Sunday evening worship at 7 p.m.

The Harrimans have been missonaries in Bolivia and served as campus ministries representatives from 1984-1986. They now plan to go to Paraguay.

The music will be provided by Ashley and Beverly Alexander Friday night, Sunday morning and Sunday night. Children are welcome to come to the meetings.



Rev. & Mrs. Harold Harriman

Pilot Club of Dewey holds business meeting

The Pilot Club of Dewey held its regular business meeting May 6 at the Jane Phillips hospital. Following the executive board meeting, the business meeting was called to order by Helen Crow, president. Invocation was given by Frances Sass and pledge of allegiance by Ruth Roberts.

Minutes of the last business and program meetings were read by Barbara Herren, secretary. Lucille Steward gave the treasurer's report and Nettie Morgan read the Governor's Bulletin and reported on the correspondence.

Committee Chairmen gave their reports and Frances Sass reminded members to read their Communique to keep abreast with Pilot Information.

Members reviewed application for scholarships received from Dewey High School Senior girls, a recipient was chosen and will receive same at awards assembly May 13.

Applications were also received from LPN students at Tri-County Tech. A nursing scholarship will be granted one graduating student.

A report from the Fund Raising Chairmen Barbara Herren and Lucille Steward was made and members decided to hold the November Craft Show at the American Legion Building.

Frances Sass, chairman, read the committee's recommendations on revising the Standing Rules and By-Laws of the club. The recommendations were accepted.

An invitation was extended to the Pilot Club of Bartlesville and Green Country Pilot Club to attend installation May 20 at the Holiday Inn. Social hour is at 6:30 and dinner at 7:00.

Members who attended the District Convention in Muskogee reported on their activities.

Those wishing to attend the May 20 meeting should call reservations to Mary Corbett 333-2361 by Friday, May 16.

Summer eye problems

Lines appear easily around the eyes, because the skin there is thin and holds less water and oil than other skin. Without protection during the summer, eye-area skin can dry out and can start creasing from squinting. Before going out, always apply an eye cream containing sun-screen ingredients. Wear brimmed hats or visored eye shades to protect hair and entire face. Complete protection by wearing sunglasses with large lenses that are dark enough to filter out all glare.

Batman joins the force: Adam West in 'Last Precinct'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Adam West has the dubious distinction of graduating from "Batman" to TV's battiest cop in NBC's new hour-long comedy series "The Last Precinct."

For slightly more than two seasons, Batman and his sidekick, Robin, were TV's dynamic duo cleaning up crime in Gotham City. Back in 1966 the broad comedy was called camp. Everything about "Batman" was a spoof.

Two decades later, West finds himself back at the same old camp-spoof stand playing an outlandish minion of the law with the same deadpan comic delivery.

As Capt. Rob Wright, West plays a combination Keystone Kop and Inspector Clouseau. Wright is in command of a hopelessly inept and motley bunch of cops who have been lumped together in a single precinct with headquarters in the morgue of a large, unidentified metropolis ... like Gotham City, perhaps?

The loony players include Keenan Wynn, Jonathan Perpich, Ernie Hudson, Randi Brooks, Vijay Amritraj and Hank Rolike.

"There are 12 or 13 of us in the permanent cast," West said, his voice filled with pride. "You could say we are sort of an upside-down 'Hill Street Blues.'"

Brooks plays a transsexual officer who does a lot of undercover work. Pete Willcox portrays a cop who moonlights as an Elvis Presley impersonator and Rick Ducommun plays a 300-pound motorcycle officer. Wings Hauser plays a sheriff's deputy who wages constant jurisdictional wars with the wacko precinct.

"You could say we might be related to the 'Police Academy' movie series," West said. "These cops really are a bunch of losers, but everything always turns out all right at the end of each show.

"Captain Wright is not exactly a nut case but he's at the very edge of burn-out. He carries a rubber hose and likes to slap it on his desk to make a point. He's a manic-depressive.

"I'm doing my best to make him as much fun as Batman."

It has been a long, dry TV spell for West, who became so identified with Batman that it was difficult for him to break away from association with the character.

Over the years he has played in dinner theaters and TV movies, appeared in a circus and with car shows, "anything to stay alive and save the farm."

West owns a large wheat farm near his native Walla Walla, Wash., although he spends most of his time at his home in the Los Angeles area.

He reckons he has starred in a dozen pilot shows, from "Doc Holiday" more than 20 years ago to "Ace Diamond, Private Eye" a couple of years ago. None of them sold.

Like Batman of old, Captain Wright is a larger-than-life portrait. Both characters demand tongue-in-cheek delivery, which West finds easy to do.

"Sometimes Wright is smaller than life," West said with a grin.

"He's something of a klutz like Clouseau, but it isn't easy to come up with bits of klutz business in each episode.

"Wright is unaware he is being watched or tested on every case. When he's under pressure unfortunate things can happen to him — like being shot out of a cannon, having a shark nibble on him or shooting the police commissioner in the foot.

"Like Clouseau, he tries to preserve his dignity, even when removing a rubber dart from the center of his forehead while giving a speech, hoping his activity goes unnoticed.

"Wright is a victim of Murphy's Law at its apex. He can take a bad situation and make it really horrible, all the while convinced he is doing one hell of a job.

"The men in his precinct know he will stand up for them so they cover for his many inadequacies.

"You can't imagine how much fun it is to play an outrageous character like Wright. In one segment he poses as a professional wrestler and actually wins his bout, much to his own astonishment.

"He's fixated, obsessive and crafty. He believes he's a hero capable of anything. He is never assailed by doubts. An actor doesn't often get a chance at a broad comedic figure like Wright."

West said there is plenty of innocent violence in "The Last Precinct," which has gunfire and auto wrecks but no victims. He likes to say, "I'd rather deliver laughs than bullets."

"This is broad comedy with some good slapstick," he said. "It's a great show for the entire family. There's only one major problem. We're on opposite 'Dallas.'"

Don't try anything different in televisionland

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Network television viewers get what they want and what they deserve — pap.

Critics and viewers alike holler for quality, new concepts, original characters, different formats. But in truth any deviation from a tried-and-true formula brings protests or, worse, ennui and low ratings.

In one dismal example, a creative man who dared to be different with a new show now faces cancellation and considerable financial disaster.

He is Danny Arnold, a hard-driving workaholic who gave TV one of its best comedy shows, "Barney Miller," which endured for seven years.

His new show is "Joe Bash," an offbeat story of a disillusioned, cynical New York beat cop with a young, idealistic partner. Bash, played by Peter Boyle, is a tragic figure caught up in situations, sometimes comic, sometimes pathetic.

Although the show is only a half-hour in length and has comedic moments, "Joe Bash" cannot be categorized as a sitcom.

For one thing, it doesn't have an annoying and intrusive laugh track. For another, much of the show is shot on street locations at night. It has no live studio audience.

What sets "Joe Bash" light years apart from sitcoms is the interpersonal relationships between the aging, defeated cop, his partner (played by Andrew Rubin) and the nighttime human flotsam of the big city. There is no cute cutting from one closeup to another with a punch line every 20 seconds.

Because "Joe Bash" is different and brilliantly produced, it will almost certainly fail because it isn't enough like "The Cosby Show" or "Family Ties."

Producer-director Arnold has the look of a man who is being offered a blindfold by a firing squad — in this case, ABC-TV.

Arnold is no stranger to the fate of TV innovators. Another of his series, "My World and Welcome To It," won an Emmy but was too "different" and was canceled after only two seasons.

"'Joe Bash' is the toughest show I've ever done," Arnold said during a lunch break at KTLA Studios where the show's interior sequences are filmed.

"Acceptance of the show has been violent. Either people love it or they hate it — violently. There's no middle ground.

"TV is unfair, dividing shows into comedy and drama. I've tried to combine the two in a single series. You can't have one without the other. Life is like that. Nothing is completely black or white. There is often humor in drama and tragedy in comedy.

"We all see situations differently. That's why I refuse to have a studio audience or laugh track, which sitcoms depend on. If the viewers don't hear a laugh they're not sure what they're watching is funny. So writers write jokes for studio audiences.

"I've tried to provide more character orientation, dropping jokes to develop attitudes, which takes a great deal more time and thought than simply whipping around one-liners.

"This approach also requires the audience to pay attention. They will not be hit on the head with humor. Instead, there is a subtlety of wit, a slowly maturing process as viewers come to know and care for the characters, as happened with 'Barney Miller.'"

"Joe Bash" is considerably less light-hearted than "Barney Miller," Arnold said. "Gallows humor and black comedy replace easy banter.

"Joe is a different kind of man," he explained. "He is totally disillusioned. All he has done as a policeman has gone without notice. He's lonely. His wife ran off with another man. Every emotional investment in his life has gone into Chapter 11.

"But he is a survivor and he does what he can to conceal the tiny flicker of humanity that remains in his soul. Sometimes this is done humorously, sometimes with pathos, drama or even tragedy.

"Joe's philosophy is that God never lets a good deed go unpunished.

"The use of any kind of humor should be as an antidote to the times, giving audiences an opportunity to find something to laugh about as an alternative to going crazy.

"Unfortunately, some critics are furious with me for not producing another 'Barney Miller.' They think I let them down.

"I doubt if we will be picked up for next season, but I like what one critic said: 'This series won't go more than six episodes, but those who saw it will never forget it.'"

Mamie Van Doren was first screen delinquent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marilyn Monroe never became a mother, but she was a matrix for two other blond actresses — Jayne Mansfield and Mamie Van Doren.

Capitalizing on Marilyn's box-office appeal, Mansfield and Van Doren starred in "B" pictures during the 1950s and early '60s. Between them they appeared in some 30 movies from 1953-60.

Monroe died of an overdose of drugs in 1962 at age 36. Mansfield was killed in an automobile crash in 1967 at age 34.

Van Doren, 55, is still alive and kicking in Newport Beach, Calif., some 40 miles south of Hollywood, where she has made her home for almost 20 years.

One wonders how Monroe and Mansfield would have fared had they lived to be 55. Would they have retired? Moved on to character roles? Sought new careers? Or would they have survived on the periphery of show business as Mamie has?

Van Doren remains a striking-looking blonde who wears figure-revealing mod clothes, sports a contemporary, streaked hairdo and is up on the latest patois.

She speaks wistfully of a comeback now that she has completed a new movie, "Free Ride," her first in 17 years.

She is a bit embarrassed about her role, explaining, "I didn't think I'd come back as a sex-crazed nurse in a college comedy."

Van Doren, clearly unhappy with her role, self-consciously described some of the coarse and explicit sex scenes from the exploitive film. But, after all, she had been 17 years away from the cameras and is no stranger to exploitation.

"Some people think of me in terms of the parts I played in the '50s," she said, smiling. "I was the Hollywood juvenile delinquent of that era in 'Running Wild,' 'Untamed Youth,' 'College Confidential' and 'High School Confidential.'

"I was compared with Marilyn and Jayne. We were all big-breasted blondes, but at least we had our own identities. I can't tell the girls apart on TV today. They have a hard edge to them. Women aren't as soft and feminine on the screen.

"It changed in the '60s and '70s with the bra-burnings and women's lib. I'm all for that but the rise of feminism sort of ended the kind of roles I played.

"People forget, or maybe never cared, there is another side to me, Joan Olander, a girl from good stock from South Dakota. A girl who used to be a tomboy.

"They can read about it in my book, which will be published next spring. I hope the title will be 'Naked in the Rain.' I used to walk nude in the rain in the garden of my home up in the Hollywood Hills years ago.

"I'm telling everything. I'm hiding nothing, including my affairs with Johnny Carson, Warren Beatty, Steve McQueen, Jack Dempsey and Joe Namath who was a big love in my life."

Van Doren said she had no compunctions about writing of her love life.

"I have a lot to share," she said. "I've led a unique life, surviving from the '50s to the '80s. Some of my contemporaries didn't have that opportunity. They died."

Van Doren, thrice divorced and now married to freelance writer Thomas Dixon, spent the last 17 years touring in plays — among them "Making Whoopee." She also cut record albums, the latest of which is "Young Dudes."

Van Doren says she has few regrets about her career, which included such films as "Sex Kittens Go To College," and would change only one decision.

"Unlike some actresses who were around in the '50s, I didn't go to bed with producers to get roles," she said. "I've never regretted that.

"But I wish I had taken one role. They wrote the Broadway play 'Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?' for me. I was under contract to Universal and thought I would be better off to stay with movies.

"Jayne Mansfield took the part and it really helped her career. If I'd taken that role my life might have turned out very differently.

"I've stayed away from Hollywood," she added reflectively. "I didn't want to hang around waiting for a role that never would come. I didn't want to get into that run into drugs and booze.

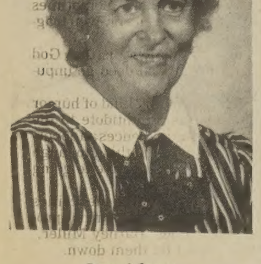
Retiring teachers represent 475 years of service

More than 475 years of service to children will culminate when 18 Bartlesville teachers retire at the end of the current school year.

To recognize and honor the retiring teachers who have given the majority of their lives to educating students, the Bartlesville Education Association hosted its annual Retirement Tea in the Madison Junior High cafeteria on Tuesday, May 13.

"For many years these educators have accepted the daily challenge to reach out to every students, regardless of ability, interest in learning, social or economic background, to provide the assistance and guidance necessary for individual educational growth," Dr. Gary Toothaker, superintendent of schools, said.



June Adams

June Adams has taught 16 of her 30 educational years in Bartlesville. She has taught first, second and third grade students at Limestone, 1970-72; Southview, 1972-81 and Hoover, 1981-86.

"I've enjoyed the learning that takes place in my classroom and the excitement and anticipation of planning new learning experiences," she said.

"My special moments have come from the feedback I receive from my students. They might tell me what they learned for the day or maybe something they didn't especially enjoy," she said.

"It's also special when they have really produced something creative or when they have come to the front in their learning to read. It's special when they say I like you for my teacher, Mrs. Adams. Liking you and liking school is very important to all students. When they are happy is when they learn the best," Mrs. Adams says.

Jean Threlkeld

For 20 years, Jean Threlkeld has been teaching students various forms of art. She taught at Central Junior High School in 1948 and later at Madison Junior High School in 1969. From 1975 to 1986 she taught art at Sooner High and the Mid-High School.

"Watching creativity happen has been very enjoyable to me as well as following the academic progress of students and seeing students who have made art fields their life work," she says.

During her 20 years of teaching Mrs. Threlkeld has taught art, painting, drawing, perspective art history and appreciation plus sculpture and ceramics.

Napanee Coffman

With 39 and one-half years teaching experience, Napanee Coffman will be retiring as one of the educators with the most tenure.

Twenty-four of her years of teaching have been spent at either Central or Madison Junior High School. She taught vocal music 22 at Central.

"I have taught in several other school districts, but I am very glad we came to Bartlesville and stayed," she said.

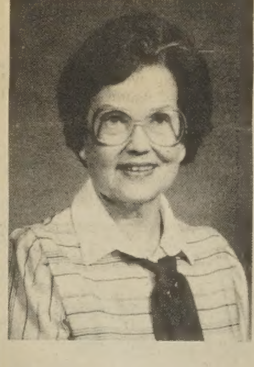
Mrs. Coffman's husband, Emmett, who died in an automobile accident in September 1984, was a social studies teacher at Madison Junior High School. He had taught 23 years.

Betty Bundren

Betty Bundren started and will end her teaching career at Central Junior High School. She has been teaching social studies to junior high students from 20 years.

"What I've enjoyed most about education is the association I have made with my fellow educators and the young people I now have as friends. The most valuable less I learned as a teacher was to always be prepared and have a sense of humor," Mrs. Bundren says.

"I have many special moments as a teacher but it is always a thrill when a former student comes back to say they remember what they learned in class and when students say thank you," she said.



Priscilla Bearer

Priscilla Bearer has taught basic, traditional and honor English classes at either Central Junior High or the Mid-High School for 20 years.

"What I have enjoyed most about teaching are those students who have been taught to appreciate the value of basic skills and to enjoy learning," Mrs. Bearer said.

Mrs. Bearer, who was selected the Bartlesville Education Association Teacher of the Year in 1980, graduated from Texas Christian University.

Her special moments in education include being a sponsor for the Central Junior High School Think Tank program, working with the student council and working with the Bartlesville Council of Teachers of English to improve curriculum.

Bettye Jane Johnston

When Bettye Jane Johnston retires this spring a bit of educational history will conclude. Mrs. Johnston represents the last staff member of the original Sooner High School faculty.

She has spent 20 of her 25 years of teaching as the journalism and yearbook teacher at Sooner High School and Mid-High School.

"I have enjoyed being involved in starting and naming four high school publications in Bartlesville. Sooner High School had one adviser for all 16 of its Spartan yearbooks and the 16 years of the Spartan Shield newspaper as well as the first four years of The Lair yearbook and the Bruin Backtalk newspaper.

"My special moments are when I hear of the writing and photographic success of my former students and the three times I have been recognized by my peers for the contribution I have made to scholastic journalism," she says.

"I would like to think that a teacher affects eternity. I remember one in grade school and one in high school in that way," she recalls.

Mrs. Johnston is probably the only teacher in the district who continues to use the rubber stamp of Teacher Dollars on every stamp check written. Over the last 11 years she has stamped some 3,700 personal checks which represents dollars spent in Bartlesville.

Allie Zoldoske

Allie Zoldoske has spent 29 of her 30 years teaching third grade students in either the Limestone or Bartlesville Public School district.

Her first year of teaching was in an eight grade country school near Eureka Springs, Ark. where her father had taught when she was an infant. The school which closed at the end of Mrs. Zoldoske's first year, was flooded and is now part of Beaver Lake.

She taught three years at Will Rogers, 1955-58, before teaching at Limestone which at the time was not part of the Bartlesville school district. In 1981, she joined the staff at Wayside.

"I enjoy running onto former students and seeing how successful they have become and having had the privilege of teaching several of those students who have become merit finalists. I always enjoy it when students come back and visit me," she said.

Jean Dean

Jean Dean has spent 14 of her 17 teaching years in the Bartlesville school district. As a chemistry teacher at College High School and later Bartlesville High School, Mrs. Dean taught general chemistry and advanced placement chemistry to senior high students.

"What I have enjoyed most about teaching has been watching the marvelous infinite variety of approaches students have in learning. Each year, as they report a special project to the rest of the class, their inventiveness in making the talks interesting is such fun to watch. I have also enjoyed the people I have worked with and the satisfaction that comes from knowing you are participating in one of the most important careers in the world," Mrs. Dean said.

"My special moments have been when former students write or come by to say that my course has helped them in some way. Also, when a unity or a demonstration that I have planned works well for students," he said.

"I recall a time when local merchant, seeing my name on my credit card, looked at me in surprise and asked if I was the Jean Dean of the Jean Dean Chemistry Association. On my admitting that I was, he said he was glad to meet me by that he had assumed that I was dead and the association was named as a memorial," she said.

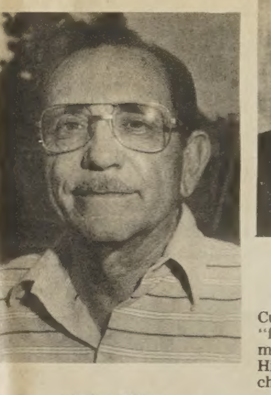
LaDean Higginbotham

For 20 years LaDean Higginbotham has taught Business Education to senior high school students. With two years of previous teaching experience, Mrs. Higginbotham started her teaching career at College High School in 1966.

During her tenure, she has taught business law, accounting, typewriting, office practice, general business, consumer economics, business English and business math.

"What I have enjoyed most about teaching is the association with students and staff and helping students learn. One of the things I have enjoyed least was the lack of funding to purchase needed items for students," Mrs. Higginbotham said.

"The most valuable lesson I have learned as a teacher is to accept what students tell me and to have belief and faith in them," she said.

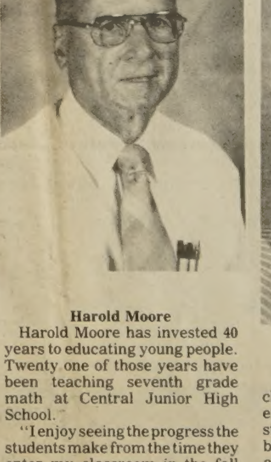


Lelan Wilson

After 36 years of teaching social studies, which includes 32 years at Central Junior High School, Lelan Wilson will be retiring.

Wilson, who has a bachelor of arts degree from Southwestern has taught civics, Oklahoma history and American history.

His special moments as a teacher have been seeing students develop an interest in history and the most valuable lesson he has learned as an educator is to "always be fair and treat each student as an individual."

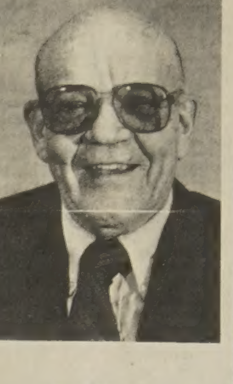


Harold Moore

Harold Moore has invested 40 years to educating young people. Twenty one of those years have been teaching seventh grade math at Central Junior High School.

"I enjoy seeing the progress the students make from the time they enter my classroom in the fall until the year ends in the spring," Moore said.

Prior to coming to Bartlesville, Moore taught at the Oklahoma Military Academy at Claremore, Bray, Roff, Elmore City, and Ardmore. He retired from the U.S. Naval Reserves after 25 years of service in 1967.



Ben Dillard

Ben Dillard will be retiring at the end of the current school year to devote more time to his favorite past time — the Oklahoma State Cowboys.

Dillard, a 1950 graduate of OSU, has taught 29 of his 36 years in Bartlesville Public Schools. He has taught fourth, fifth and sixth grades at Garfield, Washington, Highland Park, Jefferson and Kane. He also served as elementary principal at Washington Elementary School during his tenure.

"The things I have enjoyed about teaching has been working with children. It is exciting because no two days are ever the same. Also watching a student who has been struggling, "catch on" to a concept or idea," Dillard said.

Dillard says the most valuable lesson he learned as a teacher has been that every person has some special talent or ability and often it is up to to the teacher to find it.

Morton C. Cuplin

After 35 years, Morton C. Cuplin will no longer have to "face the music." The veteran music instructor was Sooner High Schools first band and orchestra director.

During his 20 years in Bartlesville Public Schools, Cuplin has taught senior high band, orchestra, stage band and music.

When College High and Sooner High combined in 1982, Cuplin took over the responsibilities of senior high band director and district supervisor of music.

"No matter what year, town or school, the students have always been great. Working with young people has always been an enjoyable experience," he said.

"The most valuable lesson I have learned as a teacher has been that each stuent needs to be recognized for his or her own special talents and abilities and provided with the opportunity to develop those talents.

Ruth Roberts

Ruth Roberts has devoted teaching English and American literature to Washington County students for 22 years. Mrs. Roberts began her teaching career at Dewey High School before joining the staff at Sooner High School in 1968. For the past four years she has taught English at the Senior High School.

"My years of teaching have been, for the most part, very gratifying ones, especially as I've witnessed many students' growth in understanding the ideas and the thinking of the world's great minds," she said.

Her special moments include being able to follow former students' successes in all fields of endeavor, accepting their appreciative remarks and realizing she has, in some small measure, helped them.

Marybelle Thomas

Marybelle Thomas has taught elementary students from 31 years in Bartlesville. Mrs. Thomas has taught second, third and fourth grade students at Jane Phillips, Southview, McKinley and Kane.

Like many of the other teachers, Mrs. Thomas has enjoyed watching children develop during the year.

"A friend gave me a plaque which reads, 'Children are not things to be molded - but persons to be unfolded.' This is one of the most valuable lessons I've learned," Mrs. Thomas said.

"My special moments have been many through the years - the laughter, the joys, the tears, the times I'm called mother and the times I'm remembered by former students. To have former students become teachers and then tell you that you were an influence for this is a real thrill," she says.

Sue Smith

Working with young people and watching them grow into contributing members of society has been an experience that Sue Smith has enjoyed as a home economics and family living teacher at College High and Bartlesville High School during the last 19 years.

The 1985 Teacher of the Year started the first Vocational Home Economics program in Bartlesville in 1949. Mrs. Smith left teaching in 1953 to raise a son and daughter and did not return to the classroom until 1969.

Honors and awards over the years include the Helen Jensen Award which is presented annually to the outstanding Oklahoma Vocational Home Economics Teacher, Zone Teacher of the Year, and one of two home economic teachers in Oklahoma selected to represent vocational home economics at the first Governor's Conference on Education.

Tess Gwaltney

Tess Gwaltney will be completing 30 years of teaching at the end of the school year. Twenty eight of these years have been teaching either kindergarten, first or second grade students.

She has taught at Washington, 1956-58; Wilson, 1959-60 and Will Rogers, 1961-86.

He biggest enjoyment has been watching children learn.

Cawood Gilbert

Cawood Gilbert taught 29 years of general science and earth science in Room 216 at Central Junior High School.

Gilbert, who received his bachelor and masters degree from OSU, has taught a total of 36 years. During the summers he served as a ranger at Yellowstone National Park.

Working with students has been the most enjoyable part of teaching and his special moments include seeing students learn and do well.

"The most valuable lesson I learned as a teacher is that hard honest work pays off," Gilbert said.

Batman joins the force: Adam West in 'Last Precinct'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Adam West has the dubious distinction of graduating from "Batman" to TV's battiest cop in NBC's new hour-long comedy series "The Last Precinct."

For slightly more than two seasons, Batman and his sidekick, Robin, were TV's dynamic duo cleaning up crime in Gotham City. Back in 1966 the broad comedy was called camp. Everything about "Batman" was a spoof.

Two decades later, West finds himself back at the same old camp-spoof stand playing an outlandish minion of the law with the same deadpan comic delivery.

As Capt. Rob Wright, West plays a combination Keystone Kop and Inspector Clouseau. Wright is in command of a hopelessly inept and motley bunch of cops who have been lumped together in a single precinct with headquarters in the morgue of a large, unidentified metropolis ... like Gotham City, perhaps?

The loony players include Keenan Wynn, Jonathan Perpich, Ernie Hudson, Randi Brooks, Vijay Amritraj and Hank Rolike.

"There are 12 or 13 of us in the permanent cast," West said, his voice filled with pride. "You could say we are sort of an upside-down 'Hill Street Blues.'"

Brooks plays a transsexual officer who does a lot of undercover work. Pete Willcox portrays a cop who moonlights as an Elvis Presley impersonator and Rick Ducommun plays a 300-pound motorcycle officer. Wings Hauser plays a sheriff's deputy who wages constant jurisdictional wars with the wacko precinct.

"You could say we might be related to the 'Police Academy' movie series," West said. "These cops really are a bunch of losers, but everything always turns out all right at the end of each show.

"Captain Wright is not exactly a nut case but he's at the very edge of burn-out. He carries a rubber hose and likes to slap it on his desk to make a point. He's a manic-depressive.

"I'm doing my best to make him as much fun as Batman."

It has been a long, dry TV spell for West, who became so identified with Batman that it was difficult for him to break away from association with the character.

Over the years he has played in dinner theaters and TV movies, appeared in a circus and with car shows, "anything to stay alive and save the farm."

West owns a large wheat farm near his native Walla Walla, Wash., although he spends most of his time at his home in the Los Angeles area.

He reckons he has starred in a dozen pilot shows, from "Doc Holiday" more than 20 years ago to "Ace Diamond, Private Eye" a couple of years ago. None of them sold.

Like Batman of old, Captain Wright is a larger-than-life portrait. Both characters demand tongue-in-cheek delivery, which West finds easy to do.

"Sometimes Wright is smaller than life," West said with a grin.

"He's something of a klutz like Clouseau, but it isn't easy to come up with bits of klutz business in each episode.

"Wright is unaware he is being watched or tested on every case. When he's under pressure unfortunate things can happen to him — like being shot out of a cannon, having a shark nibble on him or shooting the police commissioner in the foot.

"Like Clouseau, he tries to preserve his dignity, even when removing a rubber dart from the center of his forehead while giving a speech, hoping his activity goes unnoticed.

"Wright is a victim of Murphy's Law at its apex. He can take a bad situation and make it really horrible, all the while convinced he is doing one hell of a job.

"The men in his precinct know he will stand up for them so they cover for his many inadequacies.

"You can't imagine how much fun it is to play an outrageous character like Wright. In one segment he poses as a professional wrestler and actually wins his bout, much to his own astonishment.

"He's fixated, obsessive and crafty. He believes he's a hero capable of anything. He is never assailed by doubts. An actor doesn't often get a chance at a broad comedic figure like Wright."

West said there is plenty of innocent violence in "The Last Precinct," which has gunfire and auto wrecks but no victims. He likes to say, "I'd rather deliver laughs than bullets."

"This is broad comedy with some good slapstick," he said. "It's a great show for the entire family. There's only one major problem. We're on opposite 'Dallas.'"

Don't try anything different in televisionland

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Network television viewers get what they want and what they deserve — pap.

Critics and viewers alike holler for quality, new concepts, original characters, different formats. But in truth any deviation from a tried-and-true formula brings protests or, worse, ennui and low ratings.

In one dismal example, a creative man who dared to be different with a new show now faces cancellation and considerable financial disaster.

He is Danny Arnold, a hard-driving workaholic who gave TV one of its best comedy shows, "Barney Miller," which endured for seven years.

His new show is "Joe Bash," an offbeat story of a disillusioned, cynical New York beat cop with a young, idealistic partner. Bash, played by Peter Boyle, is a tragic figure caught up in situations, sometimes comic, sometimes pathetic.

Although the show is only a half-hour in length and has comedic moments, "Joe Bash" cannot be categorized as a sitcom.

For one thing, it doesn't have an annoying and intrusive laugh track. For another, much of the show is shot on street locations at night. It has no live studio audience.

What sets "Joe Bash" light years apart from sitcoms is the interpersonal relationships between the aging, defeated cop, his partner (played by Andrew Rubin) and the nighttime human flotsam of the big city. There is no cute cutting from one closeup to another with a punch line every 20 seconds.

Because "Joe Bash" is different and brilliantly produced, it will almost certainly fail because it isn't enough like "The Cosby Show" or "Family Ties."

Producer-director Arnold has the look of a man who is being offered a blindfold by a firing squad — in this case, ABC-TV.

Arnold is no stranger to the fate of TV innovators. Another of his series, "My World and Welcome To It," won an Emmy but was too "different" and was canceled after only two seasons.

"'Joe Bash' is the toughest show I've ever done," Arnold said during a lunch break at KTLA Studios where the show's interior sequences are filmed.

"Acceptance of the show has been violent. Either people love it or they hate it — violently. There's no middle ground.

"TV is unfair, dividing shows into comedy and drama. I've tried to combine the two in a single series. You can't have one without the other. Life is like that. Nothing is completely black or white. There is often humor in drama and tragedy in comedy.

"We all see situations differently. That's why I refuse to have a studio audience or laugh track, which sitcoms depend on. If the viewers don't hear a laugh they're not sure what they're watching is funny. So writers write jokes for studio audiences.

"I've tried to provide more character orientation, dropping jokes to develop attitudes, which takes a great deal more time and thought than simply whipping around one-liners.

"This approach also requires the audience to pay attention. They will not be hit on the head with humor. Instead, there is a subtlety of wit, a slowly maturing process as viewers come to know and care for the characters, as happened with 'Barney Miller.'"

"Joe Bash" is considerably less light-hearted than "Barney Miller," Arnold said. "Gallows humor and black comedy replace easy banter.

"Joe is a different kind of man," he explained. "He is totally disillusioned. All he has done as a policeman has gone without notice. He's lonely. His wife ran off with another man. Every emotional investment in his life has gone into Chapter 11.

"But he is a survivor and he does what he can to conceal the tiny flicker of humanity that remains in his soul. Sometimes this is done humorously, sometimes with pathos, drama or even tragedy.

"Joe's philosophy is that God never lets a good deed go unpunished.

"The use of any kind of humor should be as an antidote to the times, giving audiences an opportunity to find something to laugh about as an alternative to going crazy.

"Unfortunately, some critics are furious with me for not producing another 'Barney Miller.' They think I let them down.

"I doubt if we will be picked up for next season, but I like what one critic said: 'This series won't go more than six episodes, but those who saw it will never forget it.'"

Mamie Van Doren was first screen delinquent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marilyn Monroe never became a mother, but she was a matrix for two other blond actresses — Jayne Mansfield and Mamie Van Doren.

Capitalizing on Marilyn's box-office appeal, Mansfield and Van Doren starred in "B" pictures during the 1950s and early '60s. Between them they appeared in some 30 movies from 1953-60.

Monroe died of an overdose of drugs in 1962 at age 36. Mansfield was killed in an automobile crash in 1967 at age 34.

Van Doren, 55, is still alive and kicking in Newport Beach, Calif., some 40 miles south of Hollywood, where she has made her home for almost 20 years.

One wonders how Monroe and Mansfield would have fared had they lived to be 55. Would they have retired? Moved on to character roles? Sought new careers? Or would they have survived on the periphery of show business as Mamie has?

Van Doren remains a striking-looking blonde who wears figure-revealing mod clothes, sports a contemporary, streaked hairdo and is up on the latest patois.

She speaks wistfully of a comeback now that she has completed a new movie, "Free Ride," her first in 17 years.

She is a bit embarrassed about her role, explaining, "I didn't think I'd come back as a sex-crazed nurse in a college comedy."

Van Doren, clearly unhappy with her role, self-consciously described some of the coarse and explicit sex scenes from the exploitive film. But, after all, she had been 17 years away from the cameras and is no stranger to exploitation.

"Some people think of me in terms of the parts I played in the '50s," she said, smiling. "I was the Hollywood juvenile delinquent of that era in 'Running Wild,' 'Untamed Youth,' 'College Confidential' and 'High School Confidential.'

"I was compared with Marilyn and Jayne. We were all big-breasted blondes, but at least we had our own identities. I can't tell the girls apart on TV today. They have a hard edge to them. Women aren't as soft and feminine on the screen.

"It changed in the '60s and '70s with the bra-burnings and women's lib. I'm all for that but the rise of feminism sort of ended the kind of roles I played.

"People forget, or maybe never cared, there is another side to me, Joan Olander, a girl from good stock from South Dakota. A girl who used to be a tomboy.

"They can read about it in my book, which will be published next spring. I hope the title will be 'Naked in the Rain.' I used to walk nude in the rain in the garden of my home up in the Hollywood Hills years ago.

"I'm telling everything. I'm hiding nothing, including my affairs with Johnny Carson, Warren Beatty, Steve McQueen, Jack Dempsey and Joe Namath who was a big love in my life."

Van Doren said she had no compunctions about writing of her love life.

"I have a lot to share," she said. "I've led a unique life, surviving from the '50s to the '80s. Some of my contemporaries didn't have that opportunity. They died."

Van Doren, thrice divorced and now married to freelance writer Thomas Dixon, spent the last 17 years touring in plays — among them "Making Whoopee." She also cut record albums, the latest of which is "Young Dudes."

Van Doren says she has few regrets about her career, which included such films as "Sex Kittens Go To College," and would change only one decision.

"Unlike some actresses who were around in the '50s, I didn't go to bed with producers to get roles," she said. "I've never regretted that.

"But I wish I had taken one role. They wrote the Broadway play 'Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?' for me. I was under contract to Universal and thought I would be better off to stay with movies.

"Jayne Mansfield took the part and it really helped her career. If I'd taken that role my life might have turned out very differently.

"I've stayed away from Hollywood," she added reflectively. "I didn't want to hang around waiting for a role that never would come. I didn't want to get into that run into drugs and booze.

Retiring teachers represent 475 years of service

More than 475 years of service to children will culminate when 18 Bartlesville teachers retire at the end of the current school year.

To recognize and honor the retiring teachers who have given the majority of their lives to educating students, the Bartlesville Education Association hosted its annual Retirement Tea in the Madison Junior High cafeteria on Tuesday, May 13.

"For many years these educators have accepted the daily challenge to reach out to every students, regardless of ability, interest in learning, social or economic background, to provide the assistance and guidance necessary for individual educational growth," Dr. Gary Toothaker, superintendent of schools, said.

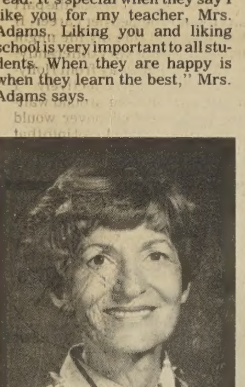
June Adams

June Adams has taught 16 of her 30 educational years in Bartlesville. She has taught first, second and third grade students at Limestone, 1970-72; Southview, 1972-81 and Hoover, 1981-86.

"I've enjoyed the learning that takes place in my classroom and the excitement and anticipation of planning new learning experiences," she said.

"My special moments have come from the feedback I receive from my students. They might tell me what they learned for the day or maybe something they didn't especially enjoy," she said.

"It's also special when they have really produced something creative or when they have come to the front in their learning to read. It's special when they say I like you for my teacher, Mrs. Adams. Liking you and liking school is very important to all students. When they are happy is when they learn the best," Mrs. Adams says.



Jean Threlkeld

For 20 years, Jean Threlkeld has been teaching students various forms of art. She taught at Central Junior High School in 1948 and later at Madison Junior High School in 1969. From 1975 to 1986 she taught art at Sooner High and the Mid-High School.

"Watching creativity happen has been very enjoyable to me as well as following the academic progress of students and seeing students who have made art fields their life work," she says.

During her 20 years of teaching Mrs. Threlkeld has taught art, painting, drawing, perspective art history and appreciation plus sculpture and ceramics.

Napanee Coffman

With 39 and one-half years teaching experience, Napanee Coffman will be retiring as one of the educators with the most tenure.

Twenty-four of her years of teaching have been spent at either Central or Madison Junior High School. She taught vocal music 22 at Central.

"I have taught in several other school districts, but I am very glad we came to Bartlesville and stayed," she said.

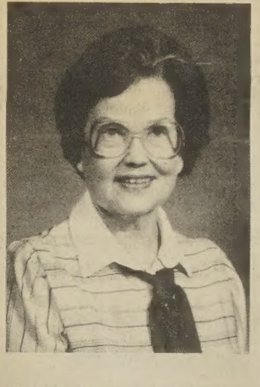
Mrs. Coffman's husband, Emmett, who died in an automobile accident in September 1984, was a social studies teacher at Madison Junior High School. He had taught 23 years.

Betty Bundren

Betty Bundren started and will end her teaching career at Central Junior High School. She has been teaching social studies to junior high students from 20 years.

"What I've enjoyed most about education is the association I have made with my fellow educators and the young people I now have as friends. The most valuable less I learned as a teacher was to always be prepared and have a sense of humor," Mrs. Bundren says.

"I have many special moments as a teacher but it is always a thrill when a former student comes back to say they remember what they learned in class and when students say thank you," she said.



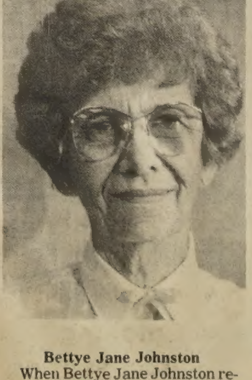
Priscilla Bearer

Priscilla Bearer has taught basic, traditional and honor English classes at either Central Junior High or the Mid-High School for 20 years.

"What I have enjoyed most about teaching are those students who have been taught to appreciate the value of basic skills and to enjoy learning," Mrs. Bearer said.

Mrs. Bearer, who was selected the Bartlesville Education Association Teacher of the Year in 1980, graduated from Texas Christian University.

Her special moments in education include being a sponsor for the Central Junior High School Think Tank program, working with the student council and working with the Bartlesville Council of Teachers of English to improve curriculum.



Bettye Jane Johnston

When Bettye Jane Johnston retires this spring a bit of educational history will conclude. Mrs. Johnston represents the last staff member of the original Sooner High School faculty.

She has spent 20 of her 25 years of teaching as the journalism and yearbook teacher at Sooner High School and Mid-High School.

"I have enjoyed being involved in starting and naming four high school publications in Bartlesville. Sooner High School had one adviser for all 16 of its Spartan yearbooks and the 16 years of the Spartan Shield newspaper as well as the first four years of The Lair yearbook and the Bruin Backtalk newspaper.

"My special moments are when I hear of the writing and photographic success of my former students and the three times I have been recognized by my peers for the contribution I have made to scholastic journalism," she says.

"I would like to think that a teacher affects eternity. I remember one in grade school and one in high school in that way," she recalls.

Mrs. Johnston is probably the only teacher in the district who continues to use the rubber stamp of Teacher Dollars on every stamp check written. Over the last 11 years she has stamped some 3,700 personal checks which represents dollars spent in Bartlesville.

Allie Zoldoske

Allie Zoldoske has spent 29 of her 30 years teaching third grade students in either the Limestone or Bartlesville Public School district.

Her first year of teaching was in an eight grade country school near Eureka Springs, Ark. where her father had taught when she was an infant. The school which closed at the end of Mrs. Zoldoske's first year, was flooded and is now part of Beaver Lake.

She taught three years at Will Rogers, 1955-58, before teaching at Limestone which at the time was not part of the Bartlesville school district. In 1981, she joined the staff at Wayside.

"I enjoy running onto former students and seeing how successful they have become and having had the privilege of teaching several of those students who have become merit finalists. I always enjoy it when students come back and visit me," she said.

Jean Dean

Jean Dean has spent 14 of her 17 teaching years in the Bartlesville school district. As a chemistry teacher at College High School and later Bartlesville High School, Mrs. Dean taught general chemistry and advanced placement chemistry to senior high students.

"What I have enjoyed most about teaching has been watching the marvelous infinite variety of approaches students have in learning. Each year, as they report a special project to the rest of the class, their inventiveness in making the talks interesting is such fun to watch. I have also enjoyed the people I have worked with and the satisfaction that comes from knowing you are participating in one of the most important careers in the world," Mrs. Dean said.

"My special moments have been when former students write or come by to say that my course has helped them in some way. Also, when a unity or a demonstration that I have planned works well for students," he said.

"I recall a time when local merchant, seeing my name on my credit card, looked at me in surprise and asked if I was the Jean Dean of the Jean Dean Chemistry Association. On my admitting that I was, he said he was glad to meet me by that he had assumed that I was dead and the association was named as a memorial," she said.

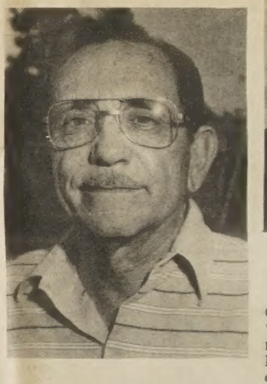
LaDean Higginbotham

For 20 years LaDean Higginbotham has taught Business Education to senior high school students. With two years of previous teaching experience, Mrs. Higginbotham started her teaching career at College High School in 1966.

During her tenure, she has taught business law, accounting, typewriting, office practice, general business, consumer economics, business English and business math.

"What I have enjoyed most about teaching is the association with students and staff and helping students learn. One of the things I have enjoyed least was the lack of funding to purchase needed items for students," Mrs. Higginbotham said.

"The most valuable lesson I have learned as a teacher is to accept what students tell me and to have belief and faith in them," she said.

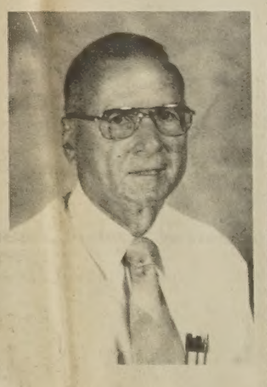


Lelan Wilson

After 36 years of teaching social studies, which includes 32 years at Central Junior High School, Lelan Wilson will be retiring.

Wilson, who has a bachelor of arts degree from Southwestern has taught civics, Oklahoma history and American history.

His special moments as a teacher have been seeing students develop an interest in history and the most valuable lesson he has learned as an educator is to "always be fair and treat each student as an individual."

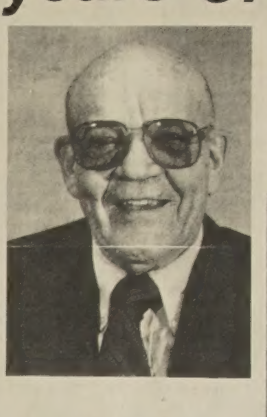


Harold Moore

Harold Moore has invested 40 years to educating young people. Twenty one of those years have been teaching seventh grade math at Central Junior High School.

"I enjoy seeing the progress the students make from the time they enter my classroom in the fall until the year ends in the spring," Moore said.

Prior to coming to Bartlesville, Moore taught at the Oklahoma Military Academy at Claremore, Bray, Roff, Elmore City, and Ardmore. He retired from the U.S. Naval Reserves after 25 years of service in 1967.



Ben Dillard

Ben Dillard will be retiring at the end of the current school year to devote more time to his favorite past time — the Oklahoma State Cowboys.

Dillard, a 1950 graduate of OSU, has taught 29 of his 36 years in Bartlesville Public Schools. He has taught fourth, fifth and sixth grades at Garfield, Washington, Highland Park, Jefferson and Kane. He also served as elementary principal at Washington Elementary School during his tenure.

"The things I have enjoyed about teaching has been working with children. It is exciting because no two days are ever the same. Also watching a student who has been struggling, "catch on" to a concept or idea," Dillard said.

Dillard says the most valuable lesson he learned as a teacher has been that every person has some special talent or ability and often it is up to to the teacher to find it.

Morton C. Cuplin

After 35 years, Morton C. Cuplin will no longer have to "face the music." The veteran music instructor was Sooner High Schools first band and orchestra director.

During his 20 years in Bartlesville Public Schools, Cuplin has taught senior high band, orchestra, stage band and music.

When College High and Sooner High combined in 1982, Cuplin took over the responsibilities of senior high band director and district supervisor of music.

"No matter what year, town or school, the students have always been great. Working with young people has always been an enjoyable experience," he said.

"The most valuable lesson I have learned as a teacher has been that each stuent needs to be recognized for his or her own special talents and abilities and provided with the opportunity to develop those talents.

Ruth Roberts

Ruth Roberts has devoted teaching English and American literature to Washington County students for 22 years. Mrs. Roberts began her teaching career at Dewey High School before joining the staff at Sooner High School in 1968. For the past four years she has taught English at the Senior High School.

"My years of teaching have been, for the most part, very gratifying ones, especially as I've witnessed many students' growth in understanding the ideas and the thinking of the world's great minds," she said.

Her special moments include being able to follow former students' successes in all fields of endeavor, accepting their appreciative remarks and realizing she has, in some small measure, helped them.

Marybelle Thomas

Marybelle Thomas has taught elementary students from 31 years in Bartlesville. Mrs. Thomas has taught second, third and fourth grade students at Jane Phillips, Southview, McKinley and Kane.

Like many of the other teachers, Mrs. Thomas has enjoyed watching children develop during the year.

"A friend gave me a plaque which reads, 'Children are not things to be molded - but persons to be unfolded.' This is one of the most valuable lessons I've learned," Mrs. Thomas said.

"My special moments have been many through the years - the laughter, the joys, the tears, the times I'm called mother and the times I'm remembered by former students. To have former students become teachers and then tell you that you were an influence for this is a real thrill," she says.

Sue Smith

Working with young people and watching them grow into contributing members of society has been an experience that Sue Smith has enjoyed as a home economics and family living teacher at College High and Bartlesville High School during the last 19 years.

The 1985 Teacher of the Year started the first Vocational Home Economics program in Bartlesville in 1949. Mrs. Smith left teaching in 1953 to raise a son and daughter and did not return to the classroom until 1969.

Honors and awards over the years include the Helen Jensen Award which is presented annually to the outstanding Oklahoma Vocational Home Economics Teacher, Zone Teacher of the Year, and one of two home economic teachers in Oklahoma selected to represent vocational home economics at the first Governor's Conference on Education.

Tess Gwaltney

Tess Gwaltney will be completing 30 years of teaching at the end of the school year. Twenty eight of these years have been teaching either kindergarten, first or second grade students.

She has taught at Washington, 1956-58; Wilson, 1959-60 and Will Rogers, 1961-86.

He biggest enjoyment has been watching children learn.

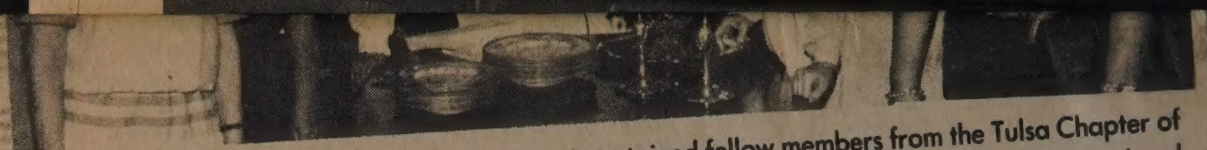
Cawood Gilbert

Cawood Gilbert taught 29 years of general science and earth science in Room 216 at Central Junior High School.

Gilbert, who received his bachelor and masters degree from OSU, has taught a total of 36 years. During the summers he served as a ranger at Yellowstone National Park.

Working with students has been the most enjoyable part of teaching and his special moments include seeing students learn and do well.

"The most valuable lesson I learned as a teacher is that hard honest work pays off," Gilbert said.



LUNCHEON GUESTS — Mrs. J. E. Conatser entertained fellow members from the Tulsa Chapter of Clipped Wings International Inc., with a luncheon at her home recently. Clipped Wings International Inc., is a world wide organization of former TWA flight attendants, with 35 chapters and 900 members. The organization supports Alzheimers disease through their various fund raising projects. Shown, front to back, left: Mrs. Noel (Eileen) Welsh, Mrs. Kenneth (June) Scoggins, Mrs. F. P. (Elaine) Mueller, Sharon Fritts. Right, Mrs. Byron (D'Ann) Gaines, Mrs. J. E. (Erna) Conatser, Mrs. E. W. (Pat) Lewis, Mrs. Dan (Carole) Gorman.

CONFERENCE CENTER, INC. Director Elsa McFarland, right, is shown with Travis Jackson, associate director of the American Indian Institute of University of Oklahoma.

Local Conference Center announces affiliation with University of Oklahoma

The Conference Center Inc., a local non-profit organization, has recently affiliated with the division of Public Responsibilty and Community Affairs of the University of Oklahoma in order to host a series of regional and national conferences and seminars.

The Conference Center Inc. specializes and offers its services to coordinating conferences, seminars, institutes and workshops in areas of total fitness and well being, stress management, chemical dependency, substance abuse, compulsive behaviors and addictions with an emphasis on solutions and prevention through education. Professional faculty with knowledge and expertise are scheduled to present the program at interesting, affordable family oriented sites.

Continuing education credits and CME's, Category I are offered through the University of Oklahoma, the American Medical Society on Alcoholism and Other Drug Dependencies (AMSAODD), and the United States Sports Academy and it's divisions of the American Research Institute for Substance Abuse (ARISA), and the American International Medical Systems Inc. (AIMS) located in Mobile, Ala. The Conference Center has been requested to coordinate a series of conferences for the Sports Academy on drug education and youth, stress management and assessment, total fitness and well being in the corporate world, and the realities of substance abuse in athletics.

Health issues concerning women, adolescents, the other victims of alcoholism, prevention of AIDS, minority health programs, stress management and assessment are some of the areas where services are offered on a local, state, national and international level designed to fit criteria and specific needs of the sponsoring agency. Programs are currently being coordinated in major cities throughout the United States, the Carribean and Bahamas. Recently the Conference Center sponsored Father Joseph Martin, a nationally known speaker on alcoholism, and has also sponsored conferences in Albuquerque, N.M., and San Antonio, Texas.

The Conference Center is presenting a conference on domestic violence and alcoholism / incest, child and sexual abuse and battered women, May 27-29 at the Excelsior Hotel in Tulsa.

For additional information on the programs and services offered by the Conference Center, call 337-0206 or writer P.O. Box 1296, Bartlesville, 74005.

Preceptor Sigma Chapter installs officers

New officers for the 1986-87 year were installed at the May 6th meeting of Preceptor Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Faye Roark presided over the installation ritual for: Jean Bolton, president; Helen Woodruff, vice president; Linda Isaacs, secretary; and Rosalinn Swinka, treasurer. Jean Bolton was presented a gavel pin guard in appreciation for her service as president the past year. She, in turn, expressed thanks to the members for a rewarding year.

Preceptor Sigma is Bartlesville's first Beta Sigma Phi Career Chapter, and the new format has been accepted with enthusiasm. The theme "Walk in the Sun, Find Renaissance" was interpreted with a study of local Indian cultures. At the monthly formal meetings programs were presented on many tribes. The cultural and social outings included visits to Claremore, Oolagah, Pawhuska, made more interesting by the background programs given in advance.

At the May 6th meeting Linda Issacs gave a program on the Delaware Indians. This tribe is of special interest here because of its location in Washington County and its strong influence on the history of Bartlesville. Delaware Indian Nannie Journeycake Pratt Bartles was the wife of Jacob Bartles, for whom our city was named. Some of the members hope to attend the Delaware pow-wow northeast of Copan on May 24th as a followup to this program. A picnic at the Bolton's will be held early that evening.

Committee charimen for the following year were announced and plans for the coming year discussed. Secret sister gifts were distributed and opened, with the secret sister's identity being revealed. After the closing ritual and mizpah, hostess Helen Woodruff served refreshments, and the members enjoyed a social hour.

An invitation is extended to any interested women of the community, whether they have been members of Beta Sigma Phi or not, to visit Preceptor Sigma meetings and to consider membership. The new Career Chapter format provides for an extremely flexible schedule, geared to the needs and desires of the members, with a nice balance of social and cultural activities. Anyone interested may call vice president Helen Woodruff at 333-7346 or any other member.

Bartlesville Garden Club holds garden tour

The Bartlesville Garden Club met for their annual spring garden tour May 4. The only garden visited was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Webb on Brookside Parkway.

The Webbs have a formal style garden which is designed for low maintenance. The garden location is such that many of its plantings require very little sun but more shade. The garden has mulching to control the growth of weeds and also retains moisture.

The club members then traveled to the Sutton Avian Research Center which is located southwest of Bartlesville. Gwen McKee, an employee of the center, explained the operations of a federal bald eagle recovery plan. She said their most recent attempt to help reestablish a breeding population of the bald eagle was considered a success. The center successfully hatched and raised 30 eagles from the 33 eggs they carefully transferred to the center from Floida. McKee conducted the club on a tour of the various buildings where these operations are carried out.

Club members then returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George McAnelly for a business meeting.. The club voted on next year's slate of officers. Elected to serve for next year are: President, Mrs. Robert R. Goins; first vice-president, Jack Presnell; second vice president, Mr. and Mrs. George McAnelly; Secretary, Mrs. O. C. Montgomery; Treasurer, Dorothy Leckie. Final plans were made for the club's participation in the spring flower show.

Next month's meeting will be a picnic in the backyard of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Montgomery and a menu was discussed for that.

Thirty-three members were present and enjoyed refreshments served by the hosts and cohostess, Mrs. Muriel Kindig.

RAPE

By Cindy Killion
E-E Staff Reporter

Being forced to have sexual intercourse without consent is rape.

It can and does occur within the context of many different situations. It is a violent crime, not a sexual crime. Women of all ages are victims.

Mention rape and most people picture a stranger lurking in a darkened alley or an intruder who breaks and climbs through a bedroom window, brandishing a knife or gun at the victim.

That particular perception of rape is nothing more than a stereotype, however, because statistics indicate that most rapes are likely to occur in less dramatic circumstances.

A rape occurs every seven minutes in the United States, and more often than not, the victim knows her assailant. He might be a professional colleague, an old family friend, a trusted neighbor, even a date or a longtime boyfriend.

According to law-enforcement officals and rape-treatment counselors throughout the United States, about 60 percent of all reported rapes are "acquaintance rape" or "date rape," as it's popularly known. But most experts also report that the true percentage may be far higher, since only an estimated 10 percent of all rapes are reported. Too, the victims of rape are hesitant to talk about a sexual assault — especially to police — when the assailant is someone they know.

The crime of rape is occurring in Bartlesville, says Faye Hegberg of the Women and Children in Crisis Inc.

"Between January and July of 1985," Hegberg says, "area therapists called around to various social service agencies. They found 14 women had identified themselves as rape victims but during that same period, only two rapes had been reported to the police. That's a big gap."

Rape is not an experience women share easily because it is a trauma that is very personal, says Hegberg. The old taboos of guilt and shame still mandate silence for its victims. Silence is mandated also by the community's attitude toward the crime.

"Rape protocol (in Bartlesville) is comforting and convincing to the victim. It gets the legal job done as it exists," Hegberg says, "but we aren't sure if it gives comfort and support to the victim. The climate in the community is not conducive for a rape victim to report a rape. I'm not trying to indite the police department or the sheriff's office, but we have to develop a climate by building rapport. We must see the need and be willing to support and refer the victim within a network of understanding among law enforcement and services geared toward rape."

A more sympathetic atmosphere is needed in Bartlesville toward the rape victim, continues Hegberg.

"We just need a more sympathetic atmosphere for the rape victim, not only on the part of the police department, the medical staff but the whole community," she says. "I think, generally, the atmosphere in Bartlesville is one of 'it can't happen to me.' It's denial. We know there may be two or three reported during the year but they don't get publicized."

"The need for any community," adds Sylvia Robertson, also of the Women and Children in Crisis Inc., "is to define rape as something they do not want, something they will not tolerate and they will prosecute rapists. The community here has never sanctioned it because it is so often reported."

Shame is probably the leading reason why women do not report rape, Hegberg says. When the rapist is an acquaintance, most victims are even more likely to blame themselves.

Victims of social rape tend to feel more ashamed, more guilty, more depressed and more angry with themselves than victims of an unknown assailant, reports Jean Westler of the National Center for the Prevention and Control of Rape, a research center for rape studies.

"There's shame associated with reporting rape — the assumption that she will be blamed while she's probably blaming herself," says Hegberg. "There's a period of time after a rape which includes a lot of second questioning their (the victim's) own actions."

Westler's research indicates that when rape victims know their attacker, the first thought often is "What kind of person am I to let this happen to me?" Afterward, they are likely to dwell on such questions as: "Why didn't I fight more? Was I provocative? Was I too stupid to see it coming?" In addition, many victims of acquaintance rape — on campuses, in offices or at home — continue to see their assailant on a day-in, day-out basis, enduring their anger, embarrassment and painful memories in silence and alone.

"The woman is always given the burden of proving she didn't do anything to entice the rape," Hegberg says. "The victims get blamed — that's the age-old way in approaching rape, and the victim is not at fault. If we blame the victim, we're just doubling the injury to the victim. They (rape victims) are dealing with it by themselves now or they are dealing with it in silence and without the support of the community."

The community must be willing to accept rape for what it is, Robertson adds.

"Rape is a violent crime. Sexuality or passion is not the motivation," she says.

It is the need to exercise power that motivates the social rapist. Acquaintance rape should be looked upon as an act of violence, to achieve or express power, says Paula Johnson, Ph.D., a UCLA psychologist and co-author of a recent study on acquaintance rape.

"It is not the weirdo or the social deviant who is the usual non-stranger rapist," she says. "Nor is it the sexually frustrated man. Our studies show that sexual satisfaction is not what the rapist is primarily after, in either stranger or non-stranger cases. Sex in acquaintance rape, as in stranger rape, is the weapon.

"We find that (in some cases of acquaintance rape) the male is acting out a stereotypic role; that he has a right to sex because he has paid for the evening's entertainment. That is a view the woman certainly does not share — it is another configuration of preconceived notions of power roles."

Social rape may also result from the refusal of the male to hear what the female is saying: She is saying no but he hears it to mean yes. So, as she struggles, he refuses to take her seriously because the basis of his power depends on discounting the female view.

Sexual assault workshops planned with parents and teenagers in mind

By Cindy Killion
E-E Staff Reporter

This Friday night, May 16, may be the one Friday night parents will want to share the evening with their teenagers.

Faye Hegberg and Sylvia Robertson from Women and Children in Crisis Inc. certainly hope so.

"On Friday night of the rape and sexual assault workshops, we want the parents, especially, to participate and bring the kids," Hegberg says.

Parents and teenagers are cordially invited to attend an evening in which they have a choice of attending one of two sessions addressing the violent crime of rape.

Special Projects Coordinator for Call Rape Inc. in Tulsa, Diane Randquist, will be conducting a 7 p.m. session about "Date Rape." The content is designed specifically for teens, ninth through twelfth grades.

> "Primarily what we want to do," Hegberg says, "is to offer a support group for rape victims . . . Anytime we convince people that it isn't the woman's fault, then a more sympathetic atmosphere will begin developing in which rape victims can feel comfortable in reporting the crime."

Randquist is particularly interested in rape awarenes and rape prevention for adolescents. With a MSW from the University of Wisconsin, her work with Call Rape Inc. in Tulsa includes providing prevention programs to children, youth and adults as well as counseling sexual assault victims of all ages and providing training on sexual assault to professionals.

Hosting another 7 p.m. session about The Role of Parents and the Community in Preventing Rape will be a panel of community professionals and Karen Carlson from the Women's Resouce Center in Norman.

Carlson is coordinator of child abuse programs at the Norman Women's Resource Center and she holds a B.S. from Concordia Lutheran Teachers College with subsequent training in sexual assault. She has worked 10 years as an educator in the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod and 5 years at Central State Hospital in Norman. A frequent speaker on the issue of sexual assault to a plethora of groups, Carlson's special interest lies in the response of the church to rape victims.

Following a 15-minute break at 8 p.m., Deborah Huntley will conduct a self-defense demonstration for women of all ages.

"To the best of my knowledge," remarks Hegberg, "This is the first time a self-defense workshop has been conducted that not only teaches avoidance techniques but also teaches women how to respond to a physical attack."

The evening's workshops will conclude at 9:30 p.m.

Contributions of $3 each will be taken at the door for the self-defense workshop while the earlier portion of the evening's agenda is free to the public.

Friday's program is just a portion of a two-day event geared toward exploring the treatment and prevention of rape and sexual assault. The workshops are sponsored by Women and Children In Crisis Inc., Washington County Child Abuse Prevention Project and the Young Women's Christian Association. Endorsing the workshops are the Bluestem Girl Scout Council, the Future Homemakers of America, the Washington County 4-H Youth Program and the Women's Network.

All of the workshops will be conducted at the Tri-County Technical School Conference Center located at 6101 Nowata Road.

The two-day workshop agenda gets underway at 1 p.m. Friday, May 16, with an afternoon for professionals and volunteers who interact regularly with rape victims. The film "Shattered" will be shown at 1 p.m., followed by a discussion moderated by Joy Leuthard, Executive Director of Tri-City Youth and Family Center Inc. in Choctaw.

Leuthard also will address the topic, "Myths and Realities / The Crime, The Victim." during a 1:45 p.m. session. Following a 2:45 p.m. break, 45 minutes will be devoted to profiling the rapist which will be followed at 3:45 p.m. by a panel discussion about how individual communities respond to rape. Composing the panel will be a nurse from the Tulsa City-/County Health Department, a representative from the Victim Assistance Center in Oklahoma City, the executive news director of Channel 8 in Tulsa, and Bartlesville Police Chief Charlie Spencer.

Fee for the Friday afternoon session is $10 per person and $5 for additional persons from the same organization. Anyone interested in any of the topics being addressed during the Friday-afternoon session also are invited to attend.

The two-day agenda concludes on Saturday morning when a session will be conducted for volunteers and interested professionals about the "person-to-person response" to rape.

The film, "Reality of Rape," will begin the morning's activities at 9 a.m. followed by an hour-long session devoted to the topic, "Victim Profile and Victim Impact," conducted by Leuthard. A break will occur at 10:30 a.m., followed by a 10:45 a.m. session about "Response to the Victim," conducted by Lynn Deskin, a three-year volunteer worker with the Women's Resource Center in Norman.

The morning session will conclude at 12 noon.

The Rape and Sexual Assault Workshops being conducted May 16-17 represent the first unified effort in the Bartlesville community to evaluate and discern treatment and prevention of rape, says Hegberg.

"Primarily what we want to do," Hegberg says, "is to offer a support group for rape victims. We need to create a climate in which law enforcement and volunteers can respond to rape victims. We feel we can do that by heightening public awareness as to what rape is. Anytime we convince people that it isn't the woman's fault, then a more sympathetic atmosphere will begin developing in which rape victims can feel comfortable in reporting the crime."

Why Hegberg and Robertson are so interested in getting parents to bring their teenagers to Friday night's session about "Date Rape" is, simply, because acquaintance rape — or "date rape" as it is more popularly known — is a crime that happens most frequently to young people. The majority of victims are between the ages of 15 and 24.

In a preliminary study done by the National Center for the Prevention of Rape in Rockville, Maryland, 92 percent of teen-age victims said they were acquainted with their attackers.

Dating is supposed to be romantic and cute, sweetness and light, movies and malts and kisses goodnight.

But young people playing the dating game are taking risks sexually — experimenting with relationships, physical affection, intimacy. Forbidding or trying to control the risky activities (dating and sexual exploration) in this case isn't as easy as making a rule against drinking and driving.

And teens are shifting from learning and seeking advice from adults to getting more information from their peers. Think of the ideas circulating in previous years: you can get pregnant from kissing; it's rape if you take your shoes off in a boy's car; boys can't control their sexual urges once those urges grow to a certain strength.

A lot of these ideas, and more, are still circulating among teens today. Misinformation about their own sexuality helps make kids more vulnerable to sexual exploitation, coercion and assault. As the importance of their peer group increases for teenagers, we not only see them passing inaccurate information, but we also find that they are not very receptive to parental criticism or warnings about their friends. Nor are they open to horror stories about what might happen to them.

Many teens are unsure of themselves and their sexual development. They are particularly vulnerable to peer pressure, which, because of the attitudes common among teenagers, may encourage a tolerance of rape.

"Teenagers need to know what rape is," Hegberg says, "and they should be told how to prevent it."

RAPE

By Cindy Killion
E-E Staff Reporter

Being forced to have sexual intercourse without consent is rape.

It can and does occur within the context of many different situations. It is a violent crime, not a sexual crime. Women of all ages are victims.

Mention rape and most people picture a stranger lurking in a darkened alley or an intruder who breaks and climbs through a bedroom window, brandishing a knife or gun at the victim.

That particular perception of rape is nothing more than a stereotype, however, because statistics indicate that most rapes are likely to occur in less dramatic circumstances.

A rape occurs every seven minutes in the United States, and more often than not, the victim knows her assailant. He might be a professional colleague, an old family friend, a trusted neighbor, even a date or a longtime boyfriend.

According to law-enforcement officals and rape-treatment counselors throughout the United States, about 60 percent of all reported rapes are "acquaintance rape" or "date rape," as it's popularly known. But most experts also report that the true percentage may be far higher, since only an estimated 10 percent of all rapes are reported. Too, the victims of rape are hesitant to talk about a sexual assault — especially to police — when the assailant is someone they know.

The crime of rape is occurring in Bartlesville, says Faye Hegberg of the Women and Children in Crisis Inc.

"Between January and July of 1985," Hegberg says, "area therapists called around to various social service agencies. They found 14 women had identified themselves as rape victims but during that same period, only two rapes had been reported to the police. That's a big gap."

Rape is not an experience women share easily because it is a trauma that is very personal, says Hegberg. The old taboos of guilt and shame still mandate silence for its victims. Silence is mandated also by the community's attitude toward the crime.

"Rape protocol (in Bartlesville) is comforting and convincing to the victim. It gets the legal job done as it exists," Hegberg says, "but we aren't sure if it gives comfort and support to the victim. The climate in the community is not conducive for a rape victim to report a rape. I'm not trying to indite the police department or the sheriff's office, but we have to develop a climate by building rapport. We must see the need and be willing to support and refer the victim within a network of understanding among law enforcement and services geared toward rape."

A more sympathetic atmosphere is needed in Bartlesville toward the rape victim, continues Hegberg.

"We just need a more sympathetic atmosphere for the rape victim, not only on the part of the police department, the medical staff but the whole community," she says. "I think, generally, the atmosphere in Bartlesville is one of 'it can't happen to me.' It's denial. We know there may be two or three reported during the year but they don't get publicized."

"The need for any community," adds Sylvia Robertson, also of the Women and Children in Crisis Inc., "is to define rape as something they do not want, something they will not tolerate and they will prosecute rapists. The community here has never sanctioned it because it is so often reported."

Shame is probably the leading reason why women do not report rape, Hegberg says. When the rapist is an acquaintance, most victims are even more likely to blame themselves.

Victims of social rape tend to feel more ashamed, more guilty, more depressed and more angry with themselves than victims of an unknown assailant, reports Jean Westler of the National Center for the Prevention and Control of Rape, a research center for rape studies.

"There's shame associated with reporting rape — the assumption that she will be blamed while she's probably blaming herself," says Hegberg. "There's a period of time after a rape which includes a lot of second questioning their (the victim's) own actions."

Westler's research indicates that when rape victims know their attacker, the first thought often is "What kind of person am I to let this happen to me?" Afterward, they are likely to dwell on such questions as: "Why didn't I fight more? Was I provocative? Was I too stupid to see it coming?" In addition, many victims of acquaintance rape — on campuses, in offices or at home — continue to see their assailant on a day-in, day-out basis, enduring their anger, embarrassment and painful memories in silence and alone.

"The woman is always given the burden of proving she didn't do anything to entice the rape," Hegberg says. "The victims get blamed — that's the age-old way in approaching rape, and the victim is not at fault. If we blame the victim, we're just doubling the injury to the victim. They (rape victims) are dealing with it by themselves now or they are dealing with it in silence and without the support of the community."

The community must be willing to accept rape for what it is, Robertson adds.

"Rape is a violent crime. Sexuality or passion is not the motivation," she says.

It is the need to exercise power that motivates the social rapist. Acquaintance rape should be looked upon as an act of violence, to achieve or express power, says Paula Johnson, Ph.D., a UCLA psychologist and co-author of a recent study on acquaintance rape.

"It is not the weirdo or the social deviant who is the usual non-stranger rapist," she says. "Nor is it the sexually frustrated man. Our studies show that sexual satisfaction is not what the rapist is primarily after, in either stranger or non-stranger cases. Sex in acquaintance rape, as in stranger rape, is the weapon.

"We find that (in some cases of acquaintance rape) the male is acting out a stereotypic role; that he has a right to sex because he has paid for the evening's entertainment. That is a view the woman certainly does not share — it is another configuration of preconceived notions of power roles."

Social rape may also result from the refusal of the male to hear what the female is saying: She is saying no but he hears it to mean yes. So, as she struggles, he refuses to take her seriously because the basis of his power depends on discounting the female view.

Sexual assault workshops planned with parents and teenagers in mind

This Friday night, May 16, may be the one Friday night parents will want to share the evening with their teenagers.

Faye Hegberg and Sylvia Robertson from Women and Children in Crisis Inc. certainly hope so.

"On Friday night of the rape and sexual assault workshops, we want the parents, especially, to participate and bring the kids," Hegberg says.

Rambling Rose Society invites rose growers to enter show

Rambling Rose Society of Bartlesville invites anyone who grows roses to enter their selections in the Fifth Annual Rose Show to be held May 24 at the Bartlesville Community Center.

Rules and general information include:

- Any amateur grower or arranger is eligible to exhibit. All roses must be grown by exhibitor in his own outdoor, private garden.
- Rose varieties exhibited must be registered with ARS to be eligible for competition.
- All entries must have official entry tags, properly filled out, and correctly named. Entry tags will be furnished by the Rambling Rose Society.
- Containers (vases) will be supplied by the Rambling Rose Society for Division I and Division II. English Boxes will be supplied on a first-come basis.
- Clear plastic material (for example, saran wrap) may be used to position a specimen in the container, however, any portion that extends above the lip of the vase will be subject to penalty in judging. No other material is permitted.
- Grooming of specimens by cleaning foliage and stems, and neatly removing unattractive growth is encouraged, however, the use of foreign substances such as oil and leaf shine is not permitted and will result in disqualification.
- Only judges, show committee and clerks will be permitted in the show area during judging period from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
- Judging shall be done by ARS accredited judges who may be assisted by ARS apprentice judges, and will be in accordance with ARS "Guidelines for Judging Roses." Decision of the judges will be final. Any question concerning the show schedule must be ruled on by the show chairman.
- All roses in Division I Section B, and Division II Section C will be placed on tables in alphabetical order of the first letter in its name, within each numbered class. Each rose entered in these sections will be judged only against the merits of its own variety.
- The Rambling Rose Society and the Bartlesville Community Center will not be responsible for loss of, or damage to entries or property, nor for injuries to persons not resulting from the direct act of their respective agent. Liability of any nature is hereby disclaimed.
- Novice classes 20,21,22, and 23 are open only to exhibitors who have never won a blue ribbon in ARS accredited rose show. Exhibitors may enter either regular competitive classes or novice classes, but not the same variety in both classes.

Instructions for cutting roses: Take a container (bucket) with about 3 inches of tap water. Cut specimen 15 to 18 inches long and immediately place in container. It is recommended to then cut about 1/4 inch from the bottom of the stem under the water. If the rose is to be held longer than a few hours, it should be placed in the refrigerator. The best stage to cut a hybrid tea rose is when two or three rows of petals have unfurled. In cutting floribundas, multiple blooms are desirable.

Entries will be accepted 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. Saturday, May 24. Judging will be 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The show is open to the public from 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

DAR Chapter installs new officers

Regent Mrs. H. H. Comstock called the May 7 meeting of the Bartlesville Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution to order. The Chaplain, Mrs. E. T. Crimmins gave a devotional honoring Mothers and led the chapter in prayer. Members participated in the salute to the flag, the American's Creed, and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, led by Mrs. Earl Mills.

The program chairman, Mrs. Richard Askew introduced Linda Befort, a representative from the Bartlesville Public School foundation, Inc. Befort pointed out that the Foundation is a broad-based, non-profit organization which complements curriculum expansion beyond regular academic funding. This educational movement is occurring nationwide, and was organized in the Bartlesville area in September 1985. Tax deductable contributions are placed in an endowment fund and the interest generated is used to fund educational programs and projects which provide new approaches to teaching the students. These programs, which stimulate thought and expand the existing curriculum, are evaluated after completion. All funds are used in the Bartlesville school system.

Mrs. John E. Perkins read the President General's message. Mrs. H. A. Dutcher gave the National Defense report, telling of the Prisoners of War who are still held captive in Laos even though the Peace Accord Treaty was signed twelve years ago. Mrs. H. C. Templeton, recording Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, and the Treasurer, Mrs. Harold Thill gave her report. Both were approved. The Registrar, Mrs. Neill Sutton introduced three new members attending for the first time: Cheryl VanAken, Pauline Jones and Emaline Hayes. Mrs. Sutton also reported the election to membership of Mrs. Toni Crain.

Mrs. E. T. Crimmins, assisted by Mrs. J. N. Finch, installed the following officers for the 1986-87 year: Regent, Mrs. John E. Perkins; Vice Regent, Mrs. Earl Mills; Chaplain, Mrs. J. J. Donaldson; Recording Secretary, Mrs. H. C. Templeton; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. R. Casperson; Treasurer, Mrs. Harold Thill; Registrar, Mrs. R. G. Askew; Historian, Mrs. W. C. Burdett; Librarian, Mrs. R. D. Nunneley. Representatives to Bartlesville's Women's Club; Mrs. M. H. Guild, Mrs. D. R. Soules, Mrs. Neill Sutton. A regent's pin and a past regent's pin were presented to the respective officers.

Mrs. Lyle Kallenbach served as hostess assisted by Mrs. M. H. Guild, Mrs. W. J. Kruckenberg, Carol Goughler, Mrs. E. T. Crimmins, and Mrs. D. G. Hawk.
